Miss Lucille Rockey

-Miss Rocky-
I've really enjoyed having you as one of my teachers. You are really sweet and are concerned with all your students. I appriciate all you have done for me, and if you ever need anything, you can always ask me. Thank you for everything you've done for me. I'll miss you when I leave but I will have to keep in touch. If you're ever in Lafayette come see me at Purdue. Always remember me because I'll always remember you.

-Miss Rockey-

I've had you for class just one year, but I feel that I know you well enough to say that your nice and also a little crazy (just the right amount). You've been really nice to me and my family. If you stick around for about 4 more years, Joe (my brother) will be a junior and you could teach him History. Have a nice, pleasant summer and I'll be see'in ya. After college starts, I probably be seeing you during fall, + spring breaks. (I'm going to St. Francis College in Fort Wayne). Have fun + thanks for everything. Love Cathy Zink

The door is open for all to take a good look at the little community of Lapel with a little over 2,000 inhabitants. Lapel is primarily an agricultural community with its two large grain elevators, but that's not all it contains. It also has two industries, a sheet metal plant and the Brockway Glass Company. Part of our pride is the Fisher Brothers' Furniture Store which is known throughout the state of Indiana for the quality of its merchandise. If someone were to drive down Main Street, they would also see a new State Bank of Lapel, a savings and loan company, a new Myer's Insurance Company building, a recently built Yancey's grocery store, a boutique shop, and a variety store. There are still other privately owned places of business including a public library which complements the high school's library. The park has a swimming pool that provides the summer entertainment for young and old alike along with Brockway's eight hole golf course that the community and school use for cross country and, of course, golf.

The heart of this community is the school. Without the school, the town would be virtually dead. The location of the school is on the south eastern part of Lapel. The shape of the school consists of two wings, one housing the elementary and the other housing the secondary grades. The teachers that work at this school are of the finest quality. In total there are thirty-two teachers with twenty-seven of them holding a Master's Degree for the required and elective courses offered to the students. Together all these elements create a school and community we can be proud of today.

Mrs. Mills demonstrates to Bruce Reed how measuring lines for the art project is done.

Much to Mr. Buck's surprise, Mike Boyll has a whipped cream pie ready for him at the pep session before the homecoming game against Mt. Vernon.

The Lapel High School Swing Choir demonstrates their outstanding showmanship abilities to the townspeople at the annual Lapel Lion's Club fish fry.

Community And School Interaction

The community welcomed the new school year with a Homecoming celebration, which lasted for three days. There was a homecoming queen contest in which the students vied for the crown. There were booths, fish dinners, and carnival rides. On Saturday there was a parade which was led by the Lapel High School band and in which the Student Council had a float to represent the school. This year's float was urging all to get out to vote. The Job's Daughters, a community organization for young ladies, had a float with the Honor Queen and her court. Lapel's group of "gun powder shooters" displayed their talents with the old time guns. The blast from the guns sounded all along Main Street. Mr. Welch, whose hobby is raising huge Percheron horses had his team in the parade. The churches of the town sponsored floats. The Shriners from Indianapolis performed for the huge crowd with their little autos. Other units in the parade were the Senior Citizens, the political candidates and Lapel's old and new fire trucks, the children with their bicycles, and the horses from the 4-H horse club. At eight o'clock on Saturday evening, the Swing Choir of Lapel High School entertained the homecoming crowd with an outstanding performance of their many songs and dances. Julie Likens was crowned Homecoming queen by last year's queen, Lisa Asbury. The remainder of the evening was spent visiting the displays, playing bingo, talking to political leaders and enjoying the food prepared by the Lion's Club. The money from this project is again given to the community as it is from these proceeds that needy children get glasses and it is from this that a deserving Senior girl receives a scholarship gift.

No Standstill Here

Lapel does not have a theater to provide entertainment for its townspeople, so most of the entertainment was provided by the school. After the town's annual homecoming celebration, the school provided football games, cross-country, and golf competition. The girls' volleyball teams went into action at this time also.

The school homecoming was held in October with an afternoon game—a first—which was preceded by a parade. Each class had a float and candidates for the queen and her court. The dance was held that evening.

The big event of the year was the Fall Festival held on October 29th. Again, it was the town which provided door prizes for the event. Then came all categories of boys' and girls' basketball. The period between basketball and the spring sports of track, golf, and baseball was filled with movies sponsored by the Student Council.

The prom was held on May 9th at the Edgewood Country Club with the after-prom being held at Cooper's Bowling Alley in Anderson. After that came the FFA banquets and the big All-Sports banquet.

The year ended with an impressive graduation ceremony for the largest Senior class—99 members—held on May 17th.

Preparing for the State Fair, the Band decorates the bus to show their high spirits.

Enjoying the evening's refreshments, Doug Banning serves Sherry Daffron a cup of punch at the Prom.

To break the monotony of the lunch hour, Mr. Dickson tries to enlighten the day for Maura Pearce and Laura Willis by telling one of his jokes.

The spirit is flowing as the cheerleaders yell with the student body during a pep session.

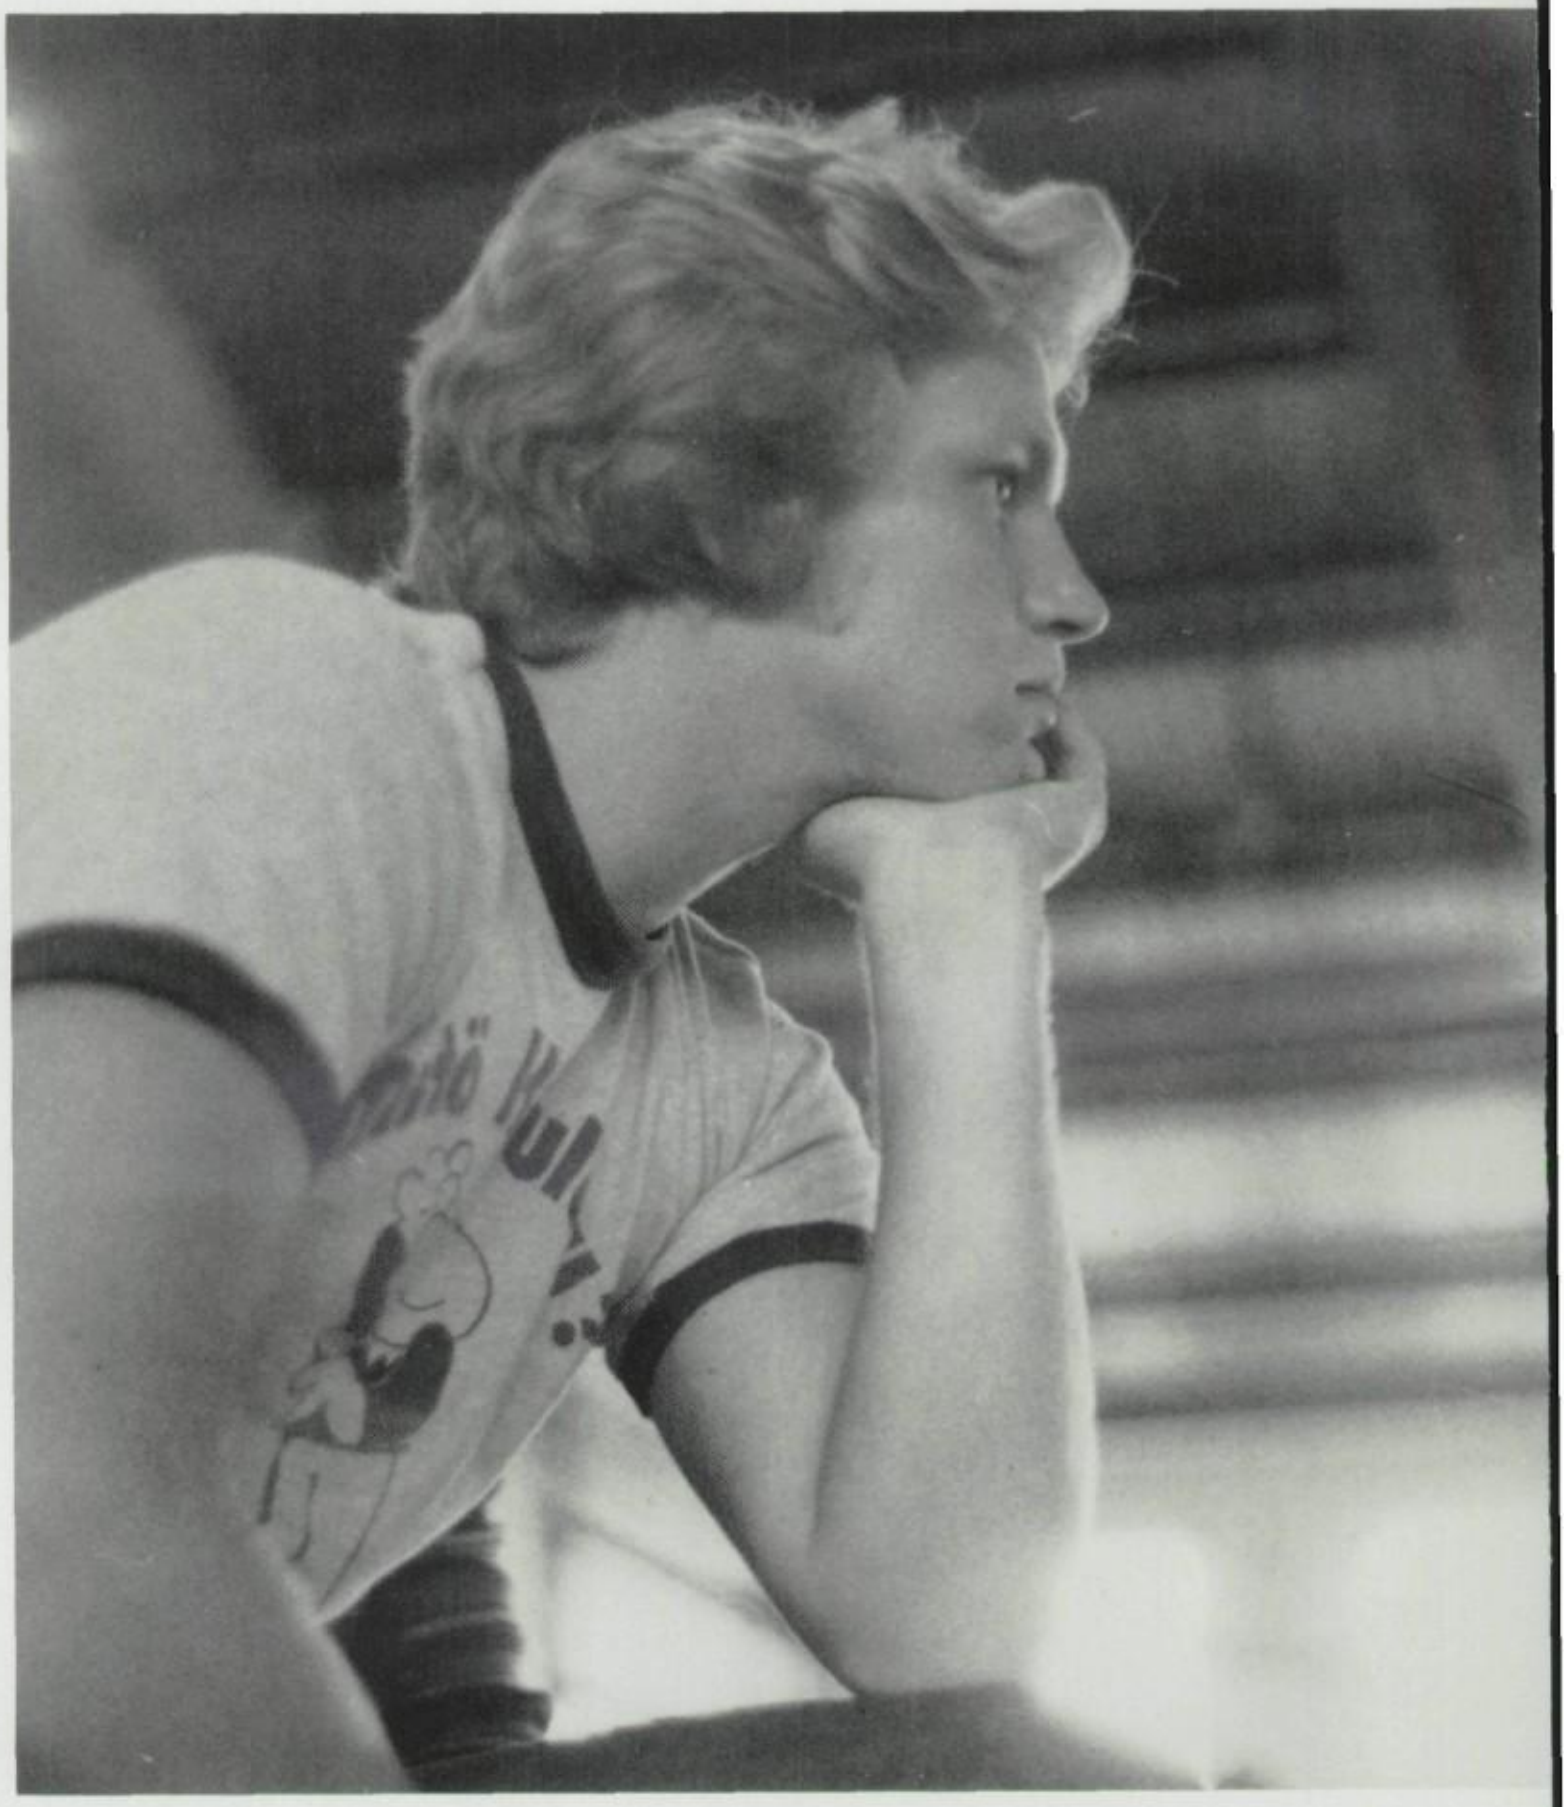
Being friends and showing it is displayed during recess among little girls on the playground.

The Door Is Open To Our People

The stage is set for a small community which has its heart in the school. No performance is complete without the actors so the next twenty-eight pages are dedicated to them. The main characters are the members of the administrative branch because they provide the faculty. The most important participants are the students, who range from grade seven to grade twelve, because without them we would not have a cast. It is these people who make up our school and we present them to you at the beginning and throughout the remainder of this book so that the drama of Lapel High School for 1980-81 can be recorded. Notice how often these people appear in the various activities and you will see how Lapel High was able to achieve so much with such a small enrollment.

People



It appears as if Scott Stump is portraying the Thinker during noon hour.

Coaches Babbitt, Buck, and Wilson seem to be up to their ears in whipped cream pies!

Cramming for a last minute test, Faith Edenfield appears puzzled by a problem.

Administrators Determine Success

A successful enterprise is due to the efforts of its administrators and this applies to the West Central Community School's leaders. Mr. Roudebush, a former teacher, is well qualified to handle the executive spot with Mr. Heinser as his capable assistant. The community elected a seven member school board and secretaries to complete the administrative group. This group provides the teachers and the necessary supplies for the school.

Mr. Marvin Pike, as principal, and his assistant Mr. Jerry Kemerly are the administrators of the Lapel School. They are in charge of all of the activities of the entire student body.

Peggy Stephens is the treasurer for the school and has charge of the money for the school and for each of the organizations. Judy Lane is the secretary and is in charge of student records. Ruth Bahler, R.N., keeps a health record for each of the students and she has a volunteer group of mothers who help her.

Discussing the welfare of our school is done by the school board members throughout the year.

Administration Provides The Best

The administration's top priority for the West Central Community School system is to provide the best faculty for the students in the public school. The faculty at Lapel School is one of the best in Madison County. There are thirty-two teachers in the high school area; of these, twenty-seven have earned master's degrees in their field. Most of these teachers are veteran teachers, of the thirty-two, only three are new teachers. All of the teachers keep up with the new trends of their fields by attending workshops and seminars in their areas. They have all received the accreditation of the North Central School Committee.

Monitoring the halls is done by Miss Rockey and her watchful eyes.

Besides teaching, Mrs. Hersberger keeps score for the volleyball game.

Mr. Short and Mr. Babbitt get a creme pie in the face during a relay race at a pep session.

They Are More Than Teachers

The faculty at Lapel does much more than teach a subject. Many of the teachers act as sponsors to a class or to an organization. Each class has two sponsors and each organization has at least one sponsor. The teacher, as sponsor, helps the group prepare for such things as floats for the Homecoming; booths for the Fall Festival; for the sale of magazines; the choosing of class colors, jackets and rings; the organizing of class meetings; preparing for contests in judging and in projects for county competition; coordinating all the activities of the school year as done by the Student Council; preparing musicals for the community and entertaining old folks, clubs, and hospitals by the Swing Choir; preparing the annual which is a diary of the 1980-81 school year. There are also those who coach each of our many sports.

These activities are found in the school but if you look over the faculty you will find that most of the members are also mothers and fathers, so after the work is done at school these teachers go home to become caring parents. Many students look upon the teachers not only as a teacher but as a friend and advisor.

Mrs. Jean Sigler: Business, Home Economics, B.S., M.A.E., Ball State University, Sunshine Society Sponsor, Summer: Tutoring, Working at Food Mart, Visiting sister in California
Miss Jeannine Terhune: Music, B.S., Taylor University, M.S., Indiana University, Swing Choir, Conglomeration, Musicals, Summer: Traveling

Mr. Wilson explains to Kevin Harney and Mike McCoy why he can't issue them a pass.

Senior: Not Always A Pretty Position

Being a Senior isn't all peaches-and-cream! There is a lot of responsibility that goes along with being "king of the hill." We're the leaders of the student body; we set the examples and trends. All eyes are upon us and, because of this, we are always being challenged by the underclassmen. Everyone wants to knock us off our pedestal. "A victory over a Senior is a victory indeed!" is the underclassmen's motto. This year is our hardest yet, especially when it comes to schoolwork. Though this year has been filled with many pressures, trials, and tribulations, all of the anticipation and excitement have made it well worth it. If we had it to do over again, we wouldn't change a thing!

A Profile Of The Class

It was way back in 1968 that sixty-eight five year olds met for the first time in the kindergarten at Lapel School. It was the beginning of the class of 1981. At that time very few of the children knew more than ten others.

In May of 1975 it was a class where everyone knew everyone else. That was changed again in the Fall of 1975 because nineteen new students were added as the sixth graders from Jackson Township came. From 1975 through 1981 the class of seventy-seven was a well knit unit with only minor changes as twelve students moved into Lapel from out of the county and out of the state.

"SENIORALITY"

It sounds familar, but it's a little different. Everyone has personality and will someday have seniorality. It may last only nine months but it's a "full" nine months. The odds were against us and so were the times; however, we made the best of our floats, carnivals, homecomings, and most of all our education. It has often been said "I want to leave this school and never come back". Well it has been missed by many and will continue to be. How can you just ignore a building that's been your home for quite a while? It's got a certain personality, just like we have seniorality. They both are a big part of our mental make-up. Without this we would just be lost in a group of people. Someday it will go back into hiding as before, but it will never be forgotten because it 's a great feeling.

All You Need For Your Future

Our journey through school has not been an easy one. Through all the dark, hard times, we've managed to make it through. It would have been a rough ride had it not been for the encouragement of our friends, parents, and teachers. There was always someone there to pick us up when we were feeling down; and, now that that final year has come, we look on ourselves as "SENIORS." Because of this title we have earned, we are expected to work out many problems by ourselves. It won't be easy but it is possible! It could be said that the senior year is the turning point of our lives. This is a time when we must make a decision whether to be furthering our education, starting a family, or selecting a vocation. Whichever we happen to choose, we'll know we made the right decision because we've had many years in preparing for this.

A New Perspective

An open door before me
As I close another behind
Something new to see
Something new to find
Twelve new doors I've seen
I close the last one now
Wondering what I'll do

Wondering what and how
But this new door I see
A light I see inside
So many ways to go
And this time I can't hide
The door is to my future
The way is mine to choose

It's also up to me
Whether I win or if I lose
So, Lord, take my hand
Through the door and on my way
And help my friends the same, Lord,
I thank you, Lord, I pray

Changes!

Well, we've been through a lot of doors since first entering school way back when. At the time, those years seemed an eternity but now they seem just a brief moment in time. Looking back we can say we've given it our best. It's here that we've struggled through our disappointments, climbed our highest goals, and gloried in our victories. We've seen fashion go from mini-skirts to below-the-knee dresses, from bell-bottom and elephant-leg pants to straight legs, from dressing up for school to dressing down. Jeans have become the standard. They've even changed from more-patches-the-better to exclusive designer denims. We have been from platform shoes to super flats. The world situation has gone from semi-peaceful co-existence to international chaos. And so our class has gone. We plunged headlong into the typical Senior year. If we haven't been rushing to a sports event, it's been a float meeting, committee meeting, powder puff practice, or, best of all, one of the many Senior parties! This is what its all about. Running around until it's felt as if we were coming apart at the seams. That's been the fun of it; we can look back on our school years with pride. We can walk through those doors with our heads held high!

An "Innovative" Class

They were the members of the class that was known as the "innovative class" last year and that seems to be their title this year. In early November plans were already completed for the 1981 Prom to be held at the Edgewood Country Club with the after prom to be at Coopers! They sold pop corn at all of the sporting events to pay for the Prom and to set a fund for next year's annual.

They're Lookin Up

They're finally a part of high school; but with the fun and privileges come responsibilities. It's the first year they've chosen their own classes. A decision affecting their school years and their life. They chose their class colors; the ones used for class jackets. From now on, the freshmen will work toward their future in earnest. They've gone through doors that open up a new world and during the next three years they're going to have to choose more doors. With common sense and luck, they'll each choose the right one.

Makin' It

With class sponsors Mrs. Mills and Mr Wilson, the eighth graders have a lot t look forward to in the future. The eighth grade year was full of growing up an making new friends, to say nothing o the excitement of the coming years.

Their main profits come from the Halloween carnival, in which they had tw booths, the softball toss and the coke toss, which made about $100.00.

Looking Up

Last year this group was at the top but with the beginning of the 1980-81 year it found itself at the bottom of the ladder of their high school years. It adjusted to the idea of many teachers, lockers, and class meetings. It elected class officers and Student Council members and began the building of a class fund with its two booths at the Fall Festival. Some of the group joined the choir, the band, basketball, football, wrestling and volleyball, the pep club and cheerleaders. As seventh graders they acquired they're first taste of Jr. High life. The group has laid a good path to the year of 1986 when once again it will be at the top.

The Door Is Open To Our Academics

The first section of our book was dedicated to the people who make up our school. Now in the next twenty-four pages we present the faculty at work with the students, preparing them for the future.

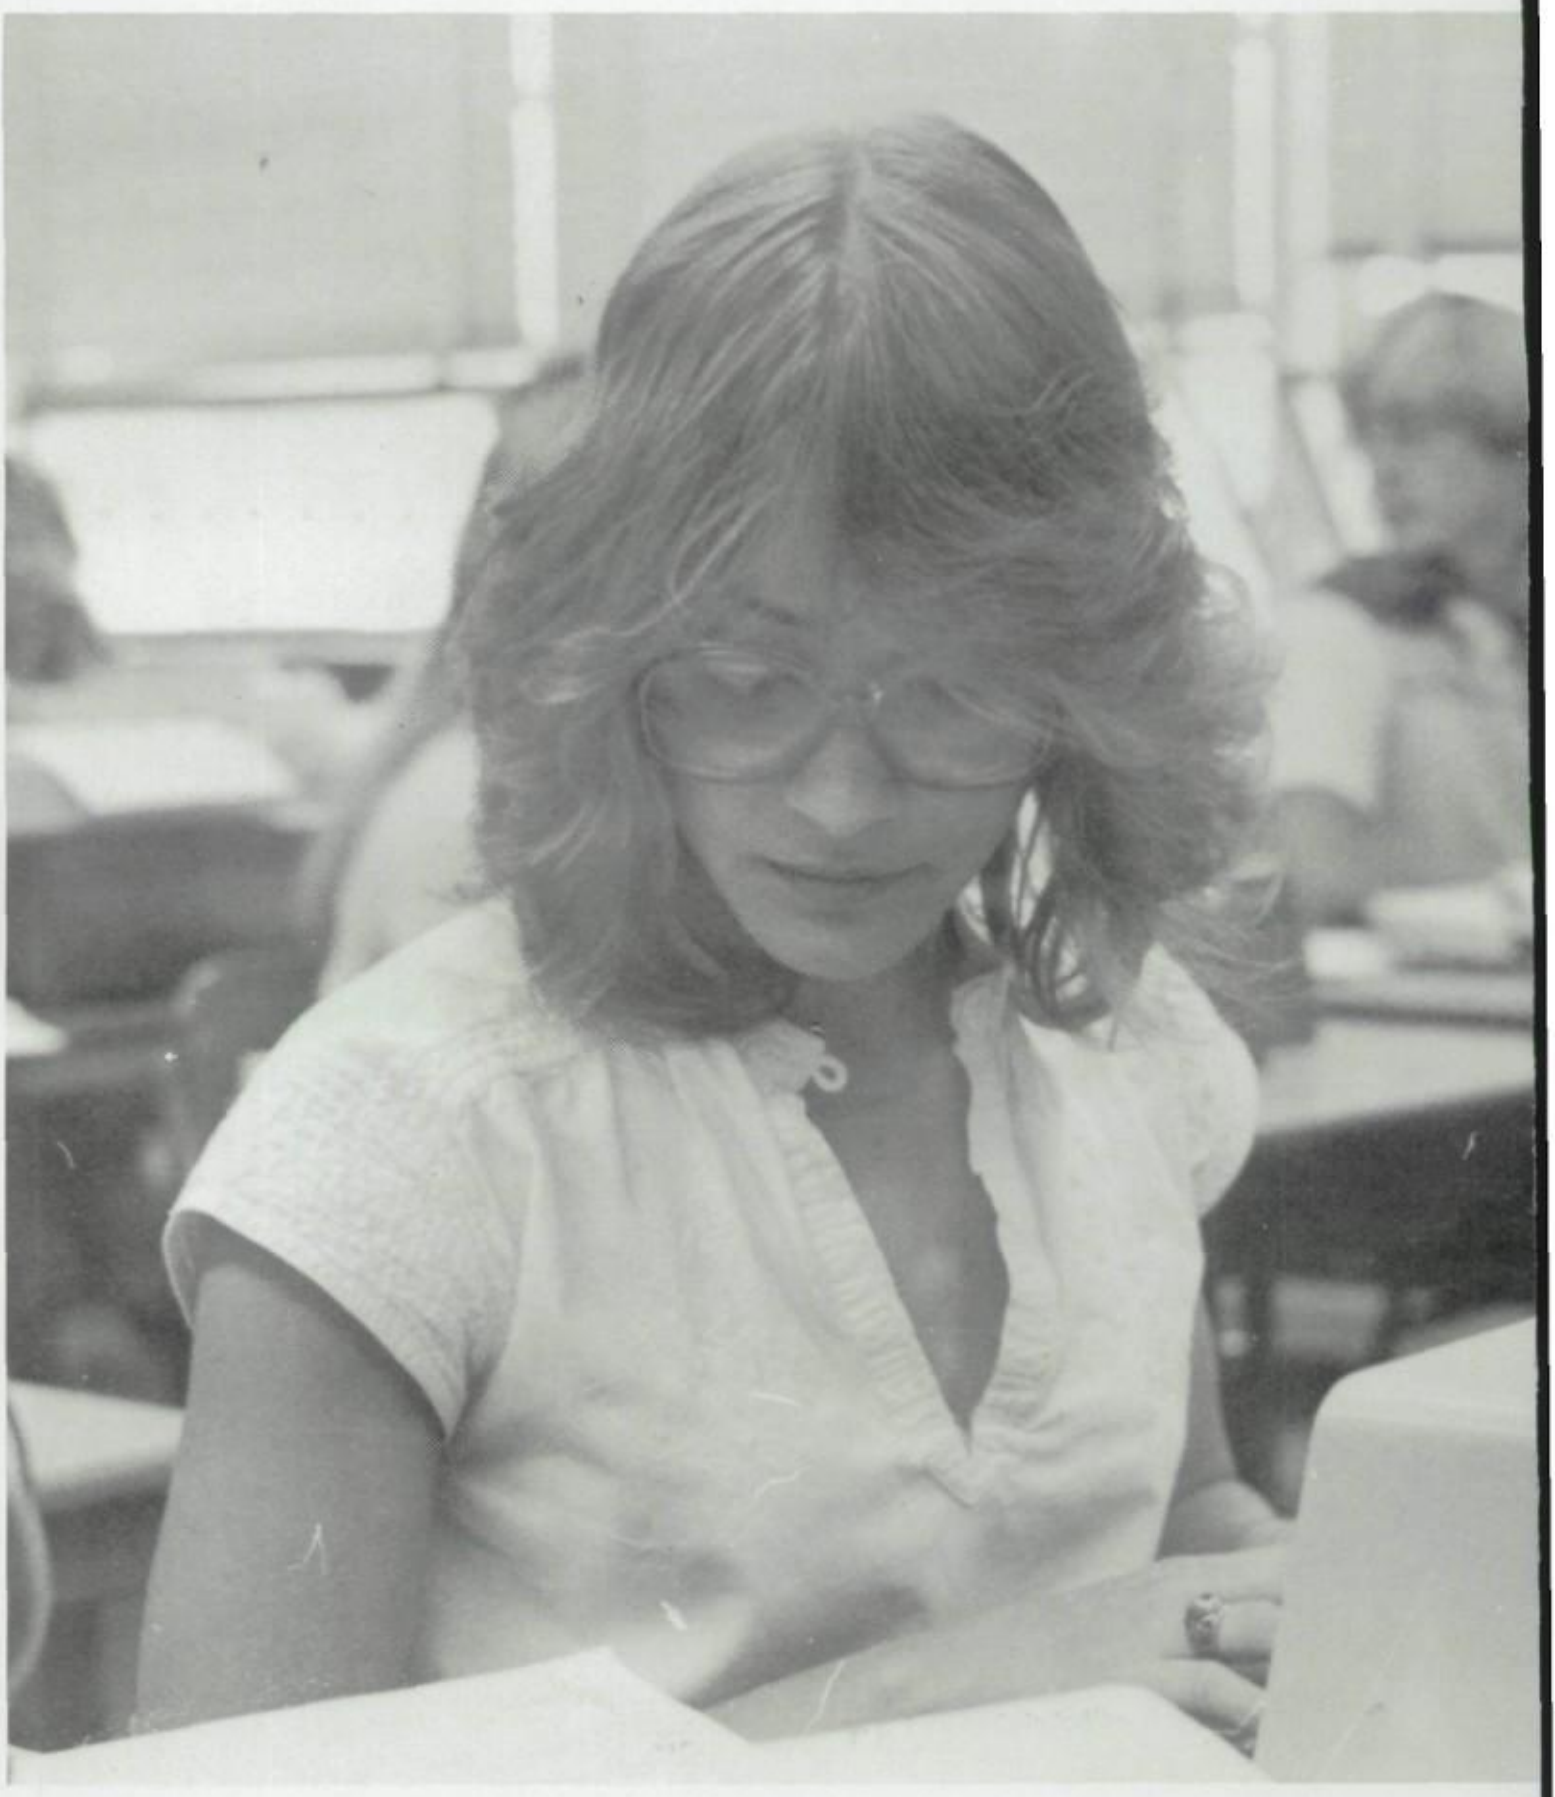
West Central Cummunity School Corporations requires thirty-four credits for graduation. The normal and recommended class load is five subjects each semester. Since requirements for graduation vary with the curricular choices, the following minimum are English and Literature, Mathematics, Science, Social Studies, Physical Ed., and Health.

Another requirement is that all students have two majors and two minors.

To meet these requirements the students select the curriculum in which they have the most interest. These are the curriculums which a student may choose from: General, Academic, Agriculture, Business Education, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Vocational, and Technical training.

Polishing up on her typing skills, Julie Stottlemyer practices before the bell rings.

ACADEMICS

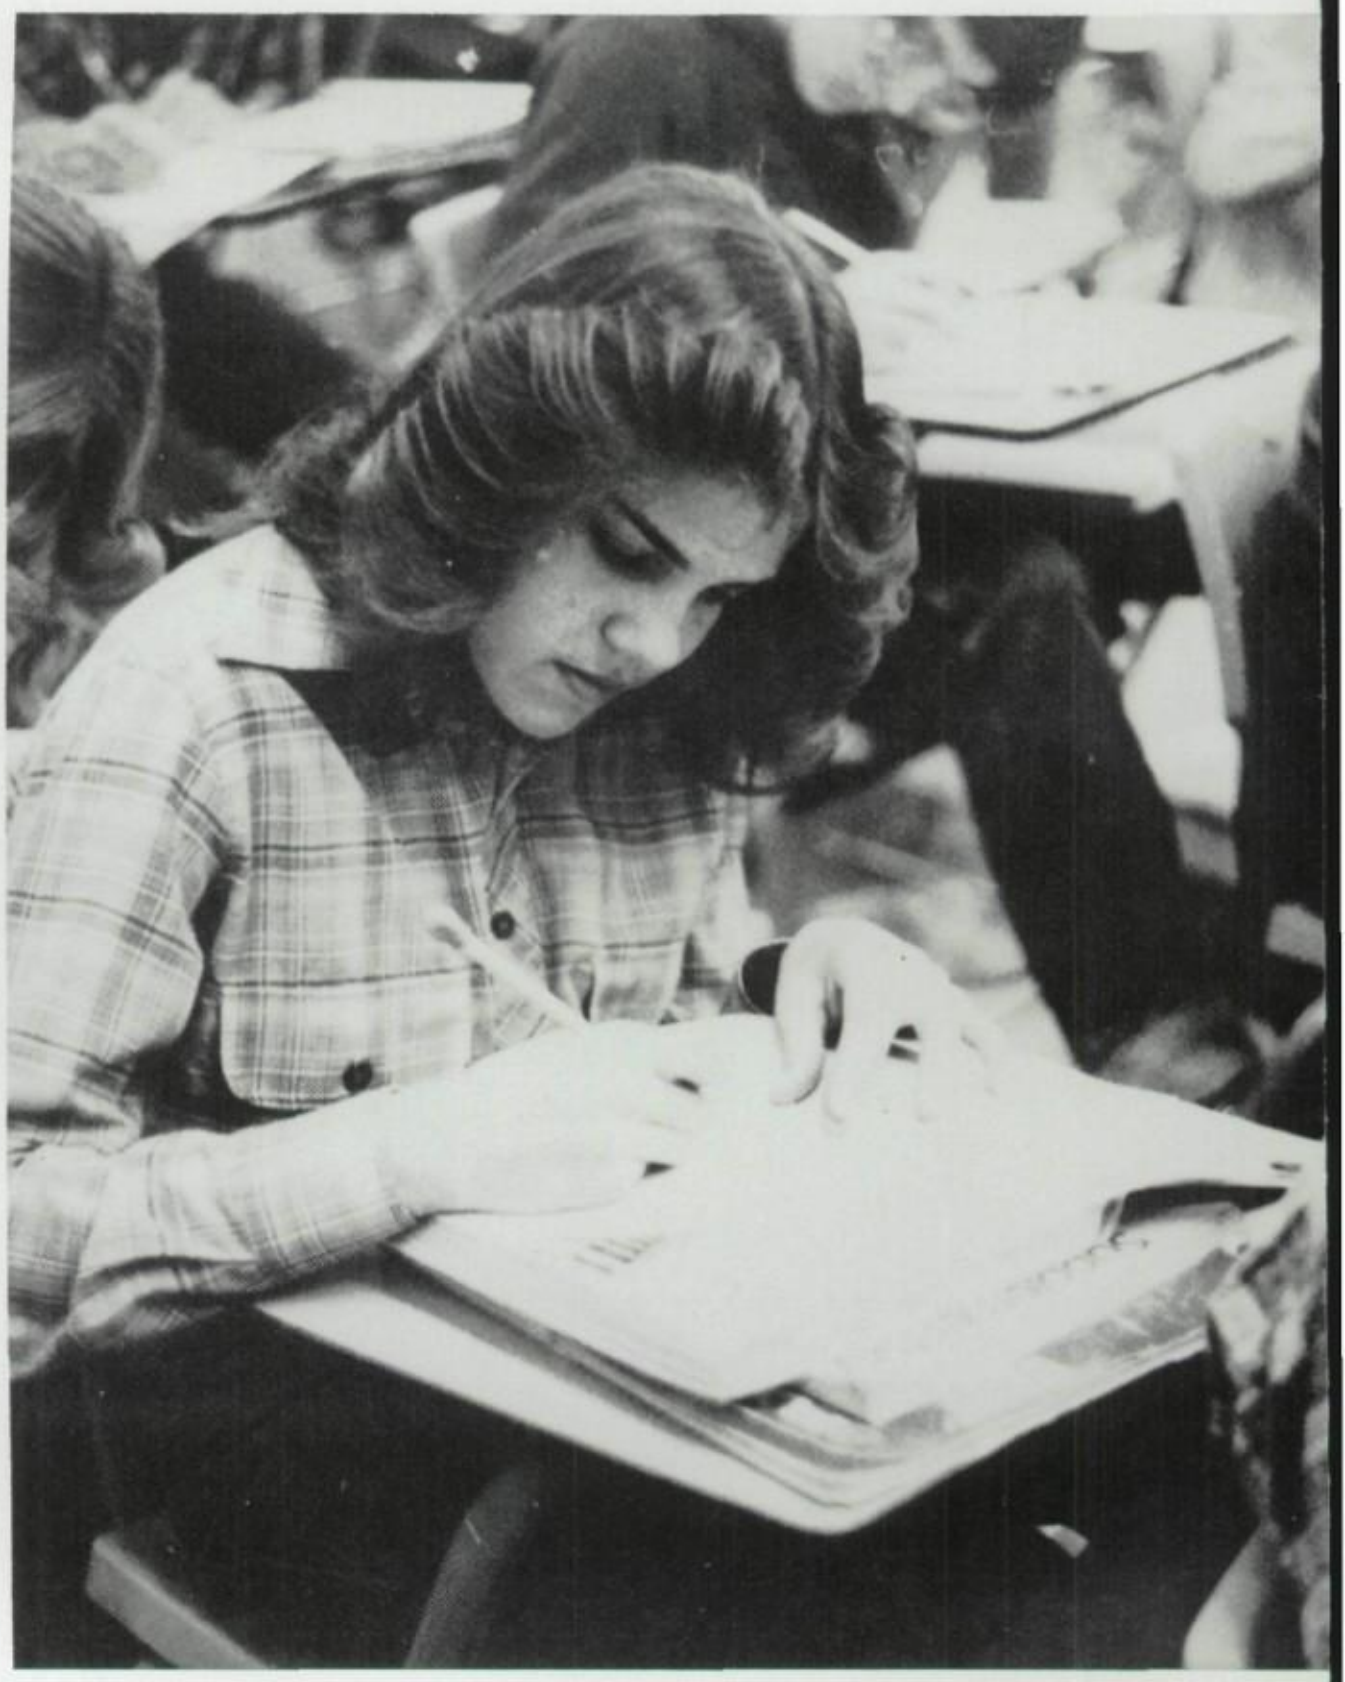


Miss Rockey tells the government class of the recent electorial outcomes.

Mrs. Williamson conducts Spanish class while Kim Brooks and Dee Lynch watch.

Kathy Andreatta practices her French quotes.

Mrs. Williamson teaches the class a new Spanish word.



Just For The Fun Of It

French, Latin, or Spanish, go ahead, take your pick! Although these courses aren't required for graduation at Lapel, many students take at least one year of a foreign language for academic reasons, but this isn't always the case! Some take them just for the fun of it! It gives the students a chance to learn a language besides their own and gives them the knowledge of another country's background that interests them.

At our school Spanish seems to be the most popular languages of the three. In here the students learn the language and the ways of the Spanish. Although French isn't as big as it has been in the past, it's still available to the romantics who love to hear the language of love(?)! As for Latin, well at Lapel it hasn't died yet. Although there wasn't a Latin I this year, the Latin II class continued to learn the unspoken language and about the downfall of Rome.

So don't be shy; get in on the fun and learn a new language!

Jon Stinson asks Crystal Taylor about a French word.

Kurt Hetliga smiles at Kip Stottlemyer's answer.

Shelly Galliher works hastily on her French test.

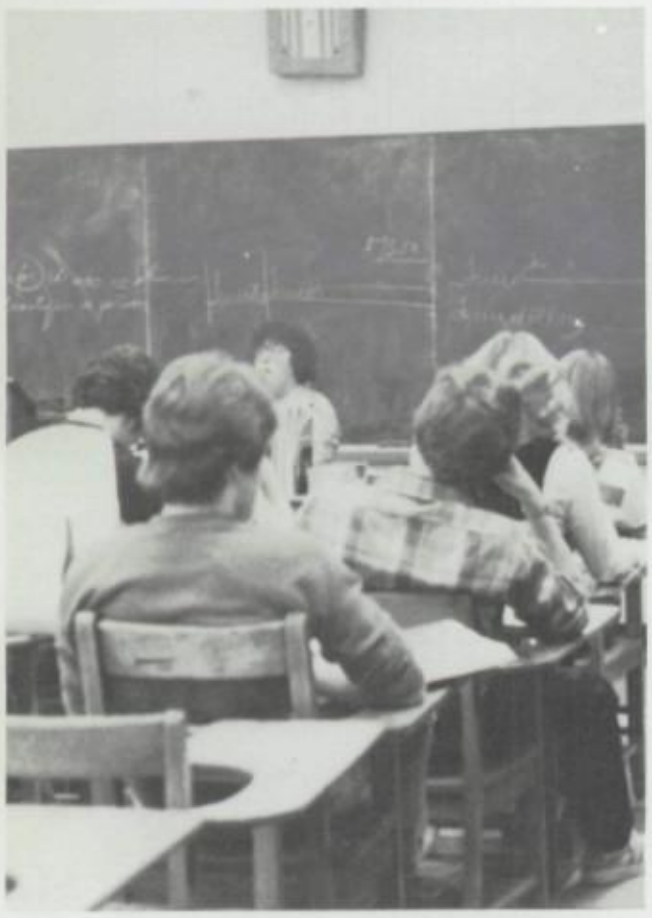
More Than Just The Basics



Mrs. Hershberger reviews the vocabulary words with her junior class.

English: we speak it easily, but using it properly is another thing!

During our years of school, grades seven through eleven are required to take English courses in hope of helping the students to acquire a better understanding of their native language and how to apply it properly.

During our Jr. high years, the teachers try to construct sturdy foundations for us with the basics of grammar. Then as we enter the high school years the teachers continue to build upon this foundation with new materials and by introducing us to the world of literature. By the time we are seniors, we have the choice to continue or to stop taking courses in English. Students who do decide to continue on through College English discover that it is more than just grammar. It's a year of reading Shakespear's plays, writing themes, and typing research papers. Although it's a year of much intensified work, it's worth it!

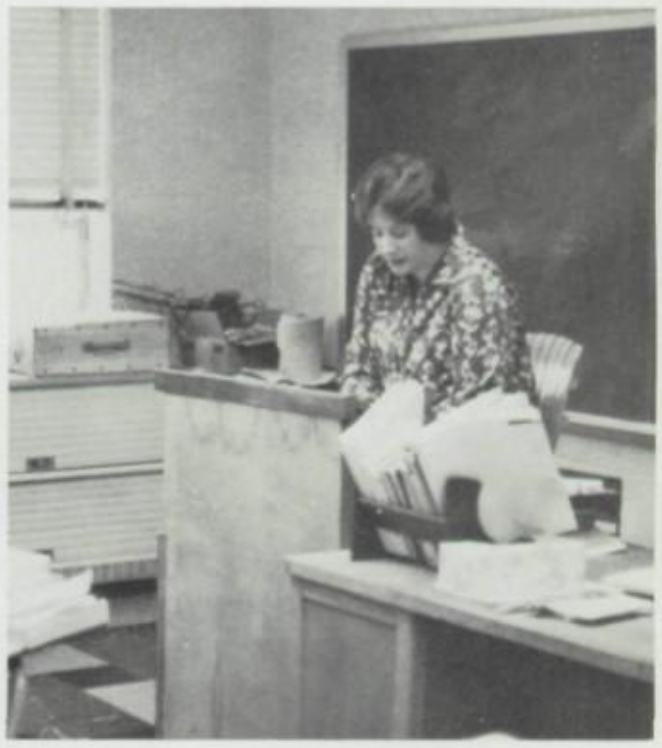
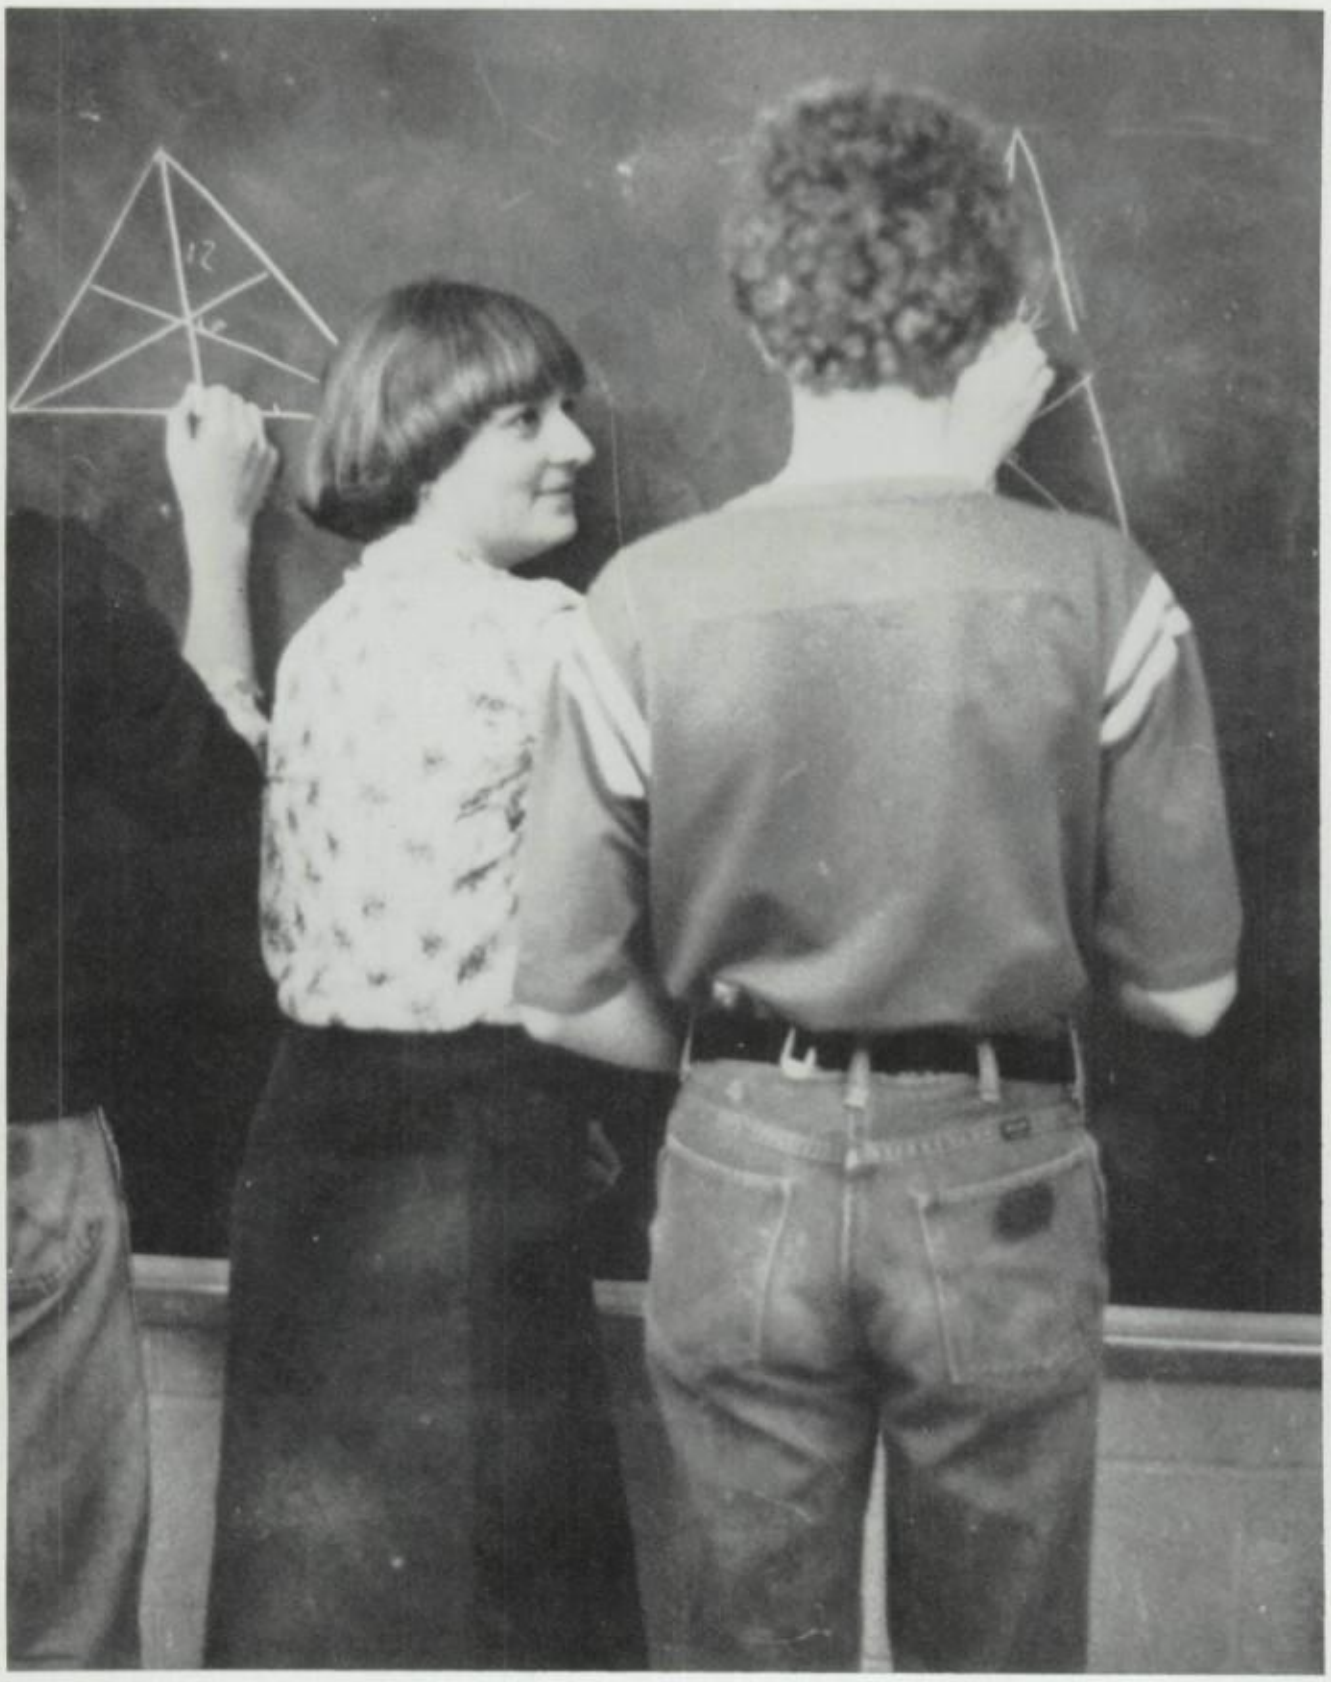
Mrs. Whalen prepares the day's work for her sophomore class.

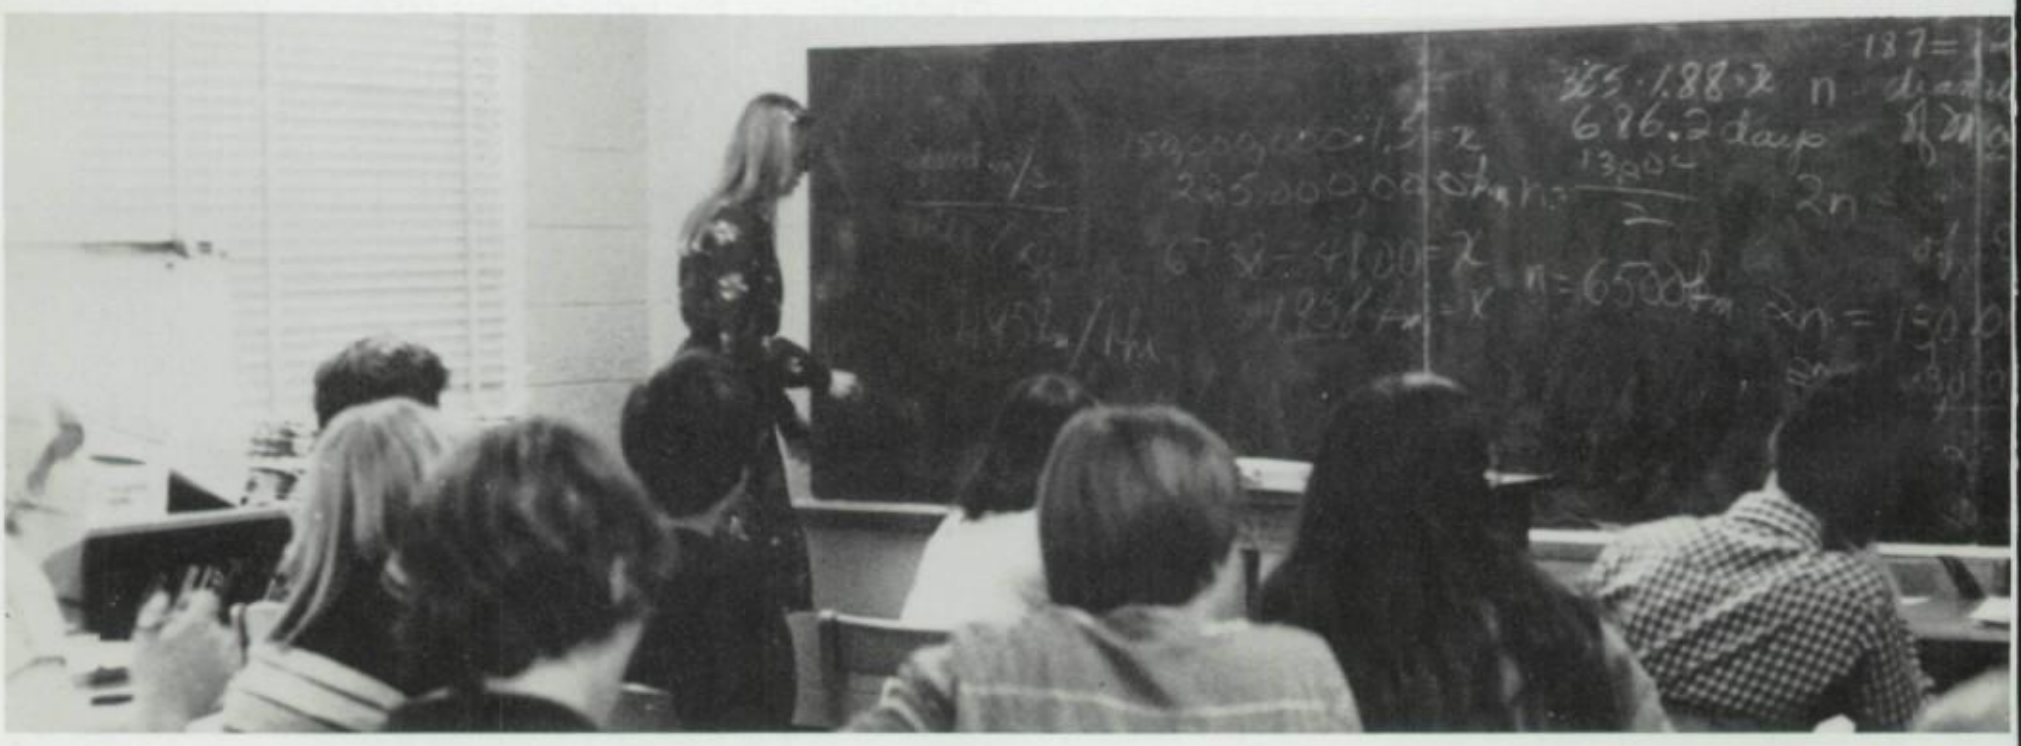




Mrs. Terhune helps Kurt Hettiga, one of her geometry students, understand a difficult problem.

In explaining story problems to her math class, Mrs. Gray finds it necessary to go to the board with her reasoning.

While awaiting his turn at the chalkboard, Randy Pettigrew watches closely to make sure he can do the problems.



Mrs. Gray, like the other math teachers, uses many teaching methods, such as reading problems aloud to students at the board.

As Easy As π

Of all the programs of study at Lapel, athematics is one of the most exten- e and difficult. Luckily, our teachers— r. Cassiday, Mrs. Gray, Mr. Wilson, rs. Terhune, and Mr. Schuler—are me of the finest and are always ready help a confused student figure out a oblem.

There are many varied math classes at pel to fit almost any student's needs d interests. General math is for the venth and eighth graders and the shmen; it is mainly a course in the basics of math: addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. Algebra I is mainly an introduction to basic equations containing variables. Algebra II involves more advanced equation solving with some figures and graphing involved. Geometry teaches students how to use compasses, rulers, theorems, and postulates in applying equations to figures, graphs, and planes of space. The math course of trigonometry and analytical geometry, though contained in one year, is really two courses in one. Trigonometry deals with trigonometric functions and their application to finding unknown facts in problems. The analytical geometry section combines theorems of plane geometry with analytical processes. Pre-calculus is a higher form of mathematics using symbols along with analytical processes to interpret different kinds of graphs. From all these descriptions, one can see that the students at Lapel can really learn a lot in math.

Old Issues, New Answers

Afghanistan, Iran, Islam, human behavior and personalities, Louisiana Purchase, Madison County, elections, and the general assembly—what do all these have in common? If you went to a government class, a sociology class, and American history class, a psychology class, or an Indiana history class, you would have heard a discussion on each of these subjects and many more.

Lapel offers a class in Indiana history and American history to seventh and eighth grades. The juniors go into a more precise study of our country's history. The past is studied to help understand the present and the future. Then in the Senior year the students broaden their views and understanding even more by studying psychology, sociology, and government.

This year a unit was done on the 1980 election. Candidates Mr. Ackerson of the Democratic party and Mr. Callahan of the Independent party came to speak to the students. All eligible students were registered and taught how to vote on the new voting machine.

Field trips were used to help the students understand the work of the General Assembly and see how the Crossroads center helps the handicapped.

Jeana Pentz was in the Voice of America contest. Mike Green was in the American Legion contest, and the government class sent in opinions on improving the General Assembly. Student Council president Skip Watkins and senior president Brent Arnold were pages for Representative Richard Dellenger.

Mr. Short's eighth graders work hard to learn about the world around them.

From Bones To Botany

The Science Department offers many different classes for those who are interested in the scientific aspect of things. Whether you decide to take just general science or go on to some more complex field, there is always something for you.

For those who are interested in the anatomy of living organisms, there are Biology I and II available. In these classes students actually dissect the bodies of animals to see how they really function. For those who enjoy studying molecular structures, there is chemistry. In this class, the students learn all about molecules and their properties.

Finally, for those who enjoy a combination of mathematics and science, there is physics. Physics is the application of mathematics to certain physical conditions of the every-day-world.

Mr. Hunter shows the class the area of a force field.

Baking Someone Happy

Adult living lasts for many years, so all schools try to prepare both young men and young women for this period. Lapel offers six years of classes designed for preparation for family living.

The seventh graders learn the basics of cooking, followed by sewing for eighth graders. Interpersonal Relations and Consumer Buying are available for freshman. Home Management, Beginning Foods, and Clothing are choices for sophomores. Juniors can have Child Development and Advanced Clothing. The final choices for the seniors are Family Living and Advanced Foods.

Each year the students in Advanced Foods prepare a Christmas dinner and an Easter dinner and serve it with the proper etiquette. Usually the principal and assistant principal are the honored guests.

These classes help the students see that there is much to learn about adult life and everyday occurrences and then help them learn these things.

Mrs. Sigler prepares to write notes on the board for her fifth hour business law class.

All of the business law students listen intently to Mrs. Sigler as she further explains a difficult chapter.

Ready For The 9 To 5 Life

Here at Lapel we are fortunate to have not one but two business teachers. Mrs. Sigler teaches consumer economics, business law, and general business. Mrs. Howenstine teaches Typing I and II, shorthand, and bookkeeping. These courses prepare students for a wide range of opportunities in the business field. In the secretarial field, typing, dictation, and shorthand combine to be a major asset, and with the help of the school offices the girls have a great chance to work with and to improve their skills in these areas. In the offices they also learn how to file, run errands, and answer the six multi-line phones. The bookkeepers are preparing for careers in the accounting field while the economics and business classes help the students understand the financial workings both in companies and in homes. In starting this year off, the shorthand, Typing II, and accounting classes enjoyed a field trip to Ball State University in Muncie. They took a tour of the campus and the new business college which was just built last year. They also looked through some of the available classes being taught. Representatives from different business colleges came to talk to the students about what each of their colleges offer and what the students can expect after they are out of high school. Through all this they become well prepared for a very profitable future.

Mrs. Howenstine helps Tammy Drews solve her accounting problems, while Dottie Tackett and Tammy Coffee work on their projects.

Julie Stottlemyer asks Mrs. Howenstine a question about her typing mistake, and Mrs. Howenstine tells her how to correct it.

Striving Toward A Bright Future

Agriculture classes and industrial arts classes prepare the guys, and some of the girls, for a really profitable future.

Shop class stresses the ability of coordinating the mind and the hands, while drafting class emphasizes the importance of neatness and accuracy.

If the students are interested in a farming career, they can take an agricultural class. There they learn about livestock, soil, crops, poultry, and pests. They learn just about everything needed to run a successful, modern farm.

Mr. McDermitt, ag teacher and F.F.A. club sponsor, lectures and demonstrates on many different phases of agriculture.

From Tennis Shoes To Textbooks

Physical Education plays a major part in the lives of students at Lapel. It not only teaches students the basic coordination and muscular skills but also some very important social skills. Running in relay races involves physical efforts and cooperational skills.

Phys. Ed discontinues every six weeks, and health classes start. These classes are a vital part for jr. high school members because it is in this class that they learn about the human body. The teachers explain such subjects as first aid, the functions of the body, and the parts of the body.

Mr. Fuqua discusses the chapter with his class.

Mark Kimmerling studies his health book for a big test.

Not Just Academics

At Lapel, the curriculum also provides art and music for those students who possess unique talents or skills in these specified areas.

In the art department, there are four different types of classes from which the students may choose. For the beginner there is Art I which covers all the basics that the student will need to know for more advanced classes. But after Art I you're on your own to choose your own specified field. You can choose from Arts and Crafts, Drawing and Painting, or Graphic Arts. All of these classes cover the specifics in their area.

As for music, this department teaches the students how to get the most out of their voices and how to use them effectively. It also helps those who wish to further their skill in music by teaching them how to sing and read notes. So it isn't just all academics.

Preparing For A Trade

Twenty-two of the juniors and seniors travel to Anderson, Indiana, everyday to attend the Anderson Area Vocational School. This is a school where each student can choose to study in the special field of his choice.

The students have fourteen different areas of studies. Each of these prepare the student for a career. It could be in the Business Intensive Lab, which trains for the secretarial field; Data Processing, which trains them to operate the key punch and computers; or Building and Trades, which trains them for a wide field in building, auto body, electronics, engineering, and graphic arts.

The school has its own Student Council and plans programs and entertainment for the entire student body composed of students from fourteen other surrounding schools.

Kirk Spaulding and Jim Copeland fix an engine in Auto Mechanics class.

The Door Is Open To Our Organizations

ORGANIZATIONS

Although we have a wide variety of curriculum choices, our school is more than just a place to gain knowledge from texts and other sources. It is a place to learn how to work with others, how to plan and achieve goals, how to do things which will bring honor to the individual, the group, and to the community. These things are acquired by the students through membership in one of twenty organizations. There are organizations for the academic achievers, the talented in art, music, government, homemaking, agriculture, science, foreign languages and publications. For those who are athletically inclined, there are sports. Each of these organizations perform some part in either helping the school, community, or others. All of the organizations worked together to provide an evening of fun for the entire community at the Halloween Carnival.

The People Behind The Action

The year's schedule of activities began with the first week of school. The first thing was preparing a float for the town's homecoming celebration. The theme was "Let Your Voice Be Heard—Vote." Just two weeks later the Council prepared for the school's homecoming. First there was the selecting of a queen and the princesses. A parade was held and the floats, the queen, and her attendants went through the town. That night there was the dance.

Later in October, the Council prepared for the Halloween Carnival. This involved all of the classes and organizations. The Council collected many gifts for the drawings.

This year the Council bought a tree for the front hall. Instead of exchanging gifts, members donated gifts for the children and helped with the Salvation Army Christmas drive.

When basketball season was over there were full length movies for entertainment.

The Council planned for the convocation program for 1980-81.

The new officers were chosen in May to start on the '81-'82 schedule.

Builders Of School Spirit And Sportsmanship

Mike Boyll, president of Letterman's club, gets the meeting started.

There are eighty varsity sports available to the students at Lapel High. This year something new was added. If a student earned a letter in a varsity sport or as a cheerleader, the student was eligible to become a charter member of the newly formed Letterman's Club.

The club was inspired by Mr. Dallas Hunter and several of the senior sportsmen. The idea was explaned to various students, and a meeting was held. At this meeting, a committee was chosen to draw up a Constitution. The constitution provided for the regular officers and a set of rules for the operation of the organization.

The primary purpose of the club is to sponsor good sportsmanship, fellowship and school spirit.

Each member must live up to these by-laws to set an example for new sports members.

The other feature of the club is to provide for three sports banquets rather than the large all-sports banquet usualy held in the Spring. The first was the fall sports banquet and the Spring sports banquet.

All of the coaches are members.

High Achievement Is Their Goal

Each year around the first of November, here is an undercurrent of anticipation. What causes this feeling? It is at this time of the year that the National Honor Society sponsor, the counselors and a faculty committee begin the task of nominating new members for the year.

Two of the new members were from the senior class, and 14 were from the junior class. A senior must have a grade point average of 3.3 and a junior must have a grade point average of 3.5.

Academic achievement is only one of the criteria for eligibility. Candidates are judged on the following characteristics: character, leadership, service to school and community, and scholarship.

On January 16th, the new members were taken into the society at a special convocation in the gym. It was a very impressive ceremony.

On Sunday, January 18th, a reception was held in the band room for the new members and their families.

Our Yellow Ribbons Mean Cheer

Yellow ribbons were found in all towns and in all places this year because they were our nations tribute to the hostages. Here at Lapel High the yellow ribbons combined with yellow mums symbolize the good will and cheer of the Sunshine Society.

This year the club grew from 40 to 55, with 15 new members being initiated on Tuesday, October 14. The new members went through the beautiful ceremony and each received a corsage of a mum and a yellow ribbon. Refreshments were served for the new members and their parents.

Each year the club sponsors a special project and a dance. The proceeds go to a worthy cause, such as Riley Hospital for Children or an orphans' home.

We're Working Harder For You

We all know we wouldn't be able to make it without food, clothing, or other necessities. This is the reason for the training that is taught through F.F.A. and 4-H. It's nice to know that there are organizations around helping young people prepare for futures in agriculture. Though F.F.A. is devoted solely to agriculture with everthing from soil judging to livestock, 4-H has many diverse projects. In 4-H the kids can participate in everything from sewing to photography.

Through these groups young people are able to explore almost any field in their effort to decide their future.

Amy Gwinn was awarded high honors for her 4-H project at the Madison County 4-H Fair.

We Have Both: Action And Words

Many people don't realize who is behind all the movies, cassette tapes, and records that are used at school for our benefit. The audio-visual aides deliver machines when they are needed and repair them when the machines aren't functioning properly.

The high school librarians may have a quiet atmosphere to work in but it does get hectic when there are missing books, too many people at once, and cards needing to be filed. Working with the high school students does make it easier, though, because students of this age can find books themselves and can take on the responsibility of returning the books.

The elementary librarians try to help younger kids locate books that would be interesting to them and remind the teachers when books are late. Teaching the fundamentals of reading at an early age is important for a literature background.

Students eagerly look for books to read so they can return to class.

New And Growing

The newest club in the school has grown from ten members to thirty three members in the past three years. Why is this true? The reason is because it has guest speakers and it has some exciting field trips. This year Phillip Shirley, D.V.M., of Pendleton, Indiana came to explain his work as a veterinarian. This prepared the group for a visit to Purdue University's School of Veterinary Medicine.

The sponsors, Mr. Mike Andrews and Mr. Larry Schuler, used experiments from their science and physics classes which made the club meetings active ones. Watch for this group; fun projects will increase its membership.

The Latin Club tries to find the location of Rome.

It's A Bilingual World

Latin and French are two of the foreign languages available to students. Even though Latin is formally titled "the dead language," it's still pretty lively at this school. Many students take Latin, which is taught by Mrs. Casey, to improve their English grades since many of the words in our language are Latin derivatives. Others enjoy singing songs in Latin in the school halls at Christmas.

For those who prefer to study the "language of love," French is for them. Though this is a difficult language, Mrs. Whalen and her students really seem to enjoy the challenge.

From these descriptions, one can see that the Latin and French clubs add much variety and excitement to our high school activities and curriculum.

Club: Mexican Style

The Spanish Club was off to a strong, ambitious start this year with Cheri Williamson as their new sponsor. Anxious to make her club as active and enjoyable as every other club, they planned many exciting events. In the month of October the club participated in the Fall Festival by setting up a booth in which they sold caramel apples.

In January they planned to get together for a night out on the town and to eat dinner at the "One Accord" restaurant.

They concluded the year by getting together and enjoying a homemade Mexican dinner. For this gathering they put together a special pinata in hopes that the year would carry many wonderful memories for each active member.

The Next Best Thing To Picasso

Rick Benefiel uses his art talent to air brush many shirts for students and other prospects. This was a money making project for the Art Club.

The members of the art club this year showed a great deal of dedication and achieved their goals with pride. They participated in a variety of activities, including the Halloween Carnival in which they set up a unique booth where they air-brushed T-shirts. This booth was so successful that they had to take orders and finish them during class. Aside from painting shirts, each member learned how to tatoo faces on the visitors. They even managed to add a little excitement to the top of Mr. Pike, the principal's head.

The Art Club even took advantage of the beautiful fall weather by visiting Brown County State Park. On this visit they toured the old-fashioned town of Nashville, which made their year fascinating.

No Camera, But Lots Of Action

If you are looking for originality, enthusiasm, and spectacular entertainment, you are looking for the Lapel Swing Choir. This exceptionally talented group of singers consists of fourteen seniors, ten juniors, and three sophomores.

The dedication of the Swing Choir leader Miss Jeannine Terhune and each member of the Swing Choir is to be complimented, for many of the members are involved in other extra-curricular activities as well as Swing Choir.

The Swing Choir is known throughout Indiana for their famous medley of popular commercials. They have even received offers from various other Swing Choir directors wanting to buy the commercial-medley. This year the choir has performed in such places as the Sheraton Inn, Riverview Hospital, Anderson Country Club, and the Madison-Grant Choral Festival. The rides to and from each performance have been filled with laughter, songs, and silent anticipation of the next thrilling moments of performances yet to come!

The conglomeration is the younger members who hope in the near future that they will become Swing Choir members too. The purpose of the group is to teach them the basic moves before the next year so that when they do make Swing Choir they will be the best ever. The Conglomeration's shows are something to watch. The performance is breathtaking.

Starting The Day With A Song

There is an old saying, "music soothes the savage." This is also true when it comes to getting students to relax and be happy. Every morning at 8:00 a.m. the choir meets in the music room for an hour of singing. All of the students chose this class because they enjoy singing. With the training in singing received in the choirs, the students can be candidates for the musical presented every spring and also try out for the ultimate goal of every singer—the Swing Choir.

This year the choirs sang at the Thanksgiving and Christmas programs sponsored by the churches at Lapel. They performed for Christmas at the Circle in Indianapolis. The year ended with the County Choral Festival in Anderson.

Respect, responsibility, and pride. At L.H.S. our director, Mr. Greg Scott, strives to instill in his members these qualities. The junior hign and high school bands combine to form the marching band for the many contests the Marching Bulldogs attend. Over the summer the band participated in several parades in Middletown, Richmond, Frankton, Noblesville and at Ball State. They attended band camp at Indiana Central on August 7th and 8th to prepare for State Fair Band Day Competition.

This year the Stage Band has also been added. The stage band plays mostly jazz and pop music and is offered to both band and non-band members.

The remainder of the year the band is kept busy with preparing shows during football season and Pep Band at basketball games.

No One's Prouder Or Louder

The girls try to make an opponent miss a foul shot.

In the midst of the cheerblock, Roxanne Campbell reveals her feelings about the referee's call.

Shouts of joy can be heard as the team scores two more points.

Although the number of people in the pep club has declined over the years, the spirit has never dwindled. Throughout our county and others as well, the spirit of the pep club was well-known for its vigorous yelling power.

Our outfits differentiated from usual ones consisting of black dress pants to bright yellow painter's pants with a black and yellow top. These gave the group a new fashionable image and seemed to boost morale.

Another change took place in the sponsorship of the pep club when Mrs Hersberger and Miss Julius decided to organize the club. They took their past experience in leading clubs and set down the various rules for the year.

Backing the basketball team all the way, the girls cheered them through all their wins, and their losses. By being a part of the team's entourage at every game, they really showed up many of larger schools who were without a formal yelling section.

The girls tell the team to take their time on the foul line.

The Spirit Of It All

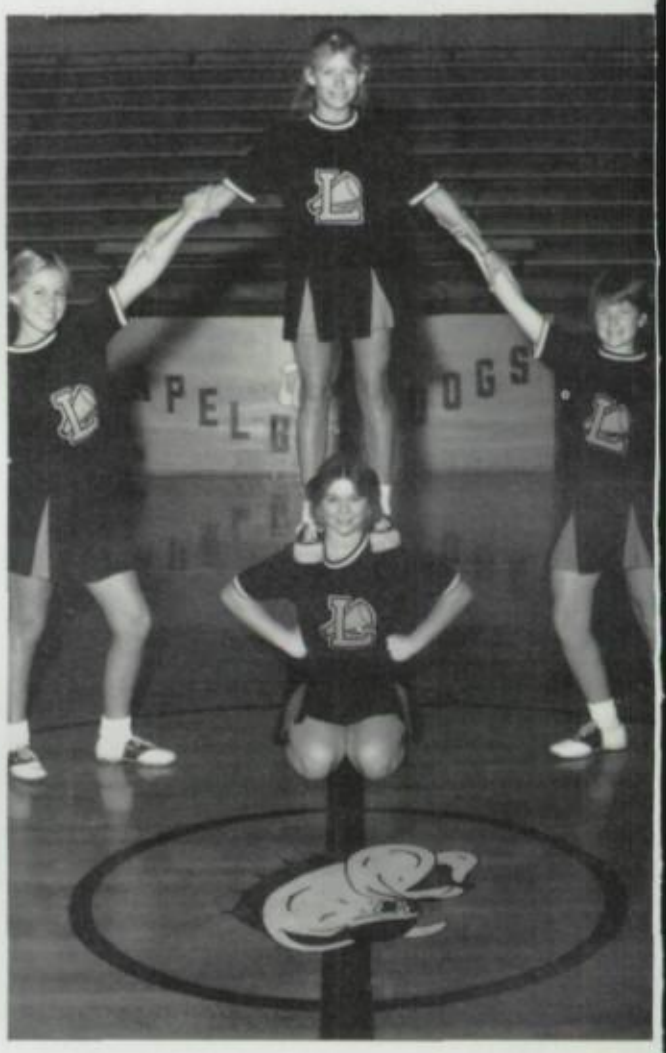
Deanna Hoover, Janey Muse, and Lori Morton get the fans stirred up at a volleyball game.

The cheerleaders kept the spirit going as the fans cheered the Bulldogs on to a victorious athletic season. Whether in the bitter night air of a football game or the unbearable heat at a basketball game, the girls did not stop striving for continuous spirit. Trying to get the Lapel fans in the whole gym or on the football field to yell could be a major asset in winning the game. Pep sessions and floor yells are also very helpful.

Each summer the Reserve and Varsity cheerleaders go to camp to learn new techniques and yells—bringing them home to the Bulldog Backers. The younger cheerleaders work during the summer months on their own yells. Through the many strenuous practices, disagreements, and difficult times, the cheerleaders seem to have that pleasant attitude towards cheerleading.

Reserve cheerleaders: Sarah Earlywine, Jill Raper, Gina Kepner, Kim Shafer, and Janey Muse

8th grade cheerleaders: Jeri Campbell, Pam Harrington, Gaylyn Hodge, and Susan Blessing



7th grade cheerleaders: Analisa Oleksey, Terri Husted, Kitty Hankins, and Trish Muse

Varsity cheerleaders: Deanna Hoover, Shelly Turner, Mimi McIntire, Kelly Scott, Shelly Mills, and Lori Morton

Freshmen cheerleaders: Lori Szypulski, Georganna Pentz, Angela Hunt, Lisa Everitt, and Roxanne Campbell

All the cheerleaders work together in cheering our Lapel Bulldog football team on to a victory.

They're Not Just Dumb Blondes

Being an office worker is not always easy. The girls are either typing absentee lists, filing notes, running errands, answering the phones, or finding missing students. Junior and senior girls usually get the privilege of working and enjoying the work they do, even though some days are more hectic than others.

Another type of helper is the person who works as teachers' aid, in the elementary or the higher grades. A teacher's aid can be a boy or a girl, it makes no difference.

The teachers' aids help to keep the class under control, grade papers, listen to them read, or even read to them. A p.e. assistant helps to take attendance, gather up sports equipment, grade papers, and even sometimes be that extra player. Both teacher's aids and p.e. assistants make life at Lapel run a lot smoother for everyone.

The busy day is eased by the office girls doing their work.

Few But Dedicated

It took much courage and dedication, but the yearbook was finally finished.

To some, putting a yearbook together may seem to be a touch and go thing, but those who worked on it soon learned that it takes time and ingenuity, especially the editors: Laura Willis and Leslie Ramsey. No one would have dreamed that there were so many layouts to be drawn up, copy to be written, ads to be sold, and pictures to be taken. More importantly though, there were deadlines that had to be met.

The editors went to Ball State in August to learn the basics plus some new and interesting ideas. These ideas were brought back with much enthusiasm but they weren't all usable because of uncontrollable circumstances, with the main one being money. With only a few other people to help the editors put the book together, they all had to put forth a hundred percent.

The everyday working staff consisted of five people: Maura Pearce, Tracy Howell, Mila Crooks, and the two editors. Maura Pearce and Tracy Howell learned how to do layouts quickly and added their own new ideas. Mila Crooks was our main typist who had a rough time trying to type plus anything else she was asked to do for the others.

There was still one other person that gave freely of her time, but she wasn't a student. The advisor, Miss Rockey, helped with the business part of the book and wrote copy so that the pages could be done. With her years of experience, she guided us through this year's book by helping any way she could.

The ad sellers and other people who helped gave of their time generously, contributing what they could. It wasn't easy for students to spend four nights a week working on the annual with all the other activities going on besides the homework that had to be done. Also, the photographers, Shelly Busby and Rob Mountcastle, had a hard time trying to chase down all the pictures needed for the pages. They weren't hindered by the demands as anyone could see because they delivered what was expected of them.

Even though this yearbook involved large amounts of time and money, the staff completed the job by simply "grinning and bearing it." Being able to see their finished works, the staff was glad that they had chosen to do this enormous task.

Laura Willis, Tracy Howell, Leslie Ramsey, and Maura Pearce spend their first hour of school trying to put together a few pages.

The Door Is Open To Our Activities

Each year the organizations perform a variety of activities to promote the school. Every fall the Student Council prepares the Halloween Carnival in which each organization participates. Then the Council prepares the Homecoming activities which includes floats, a parade, a crowning of a queen, and a dance. In April all of the choirs work as one on an outstanding musical. The Art Club helps with the sets and costuming. It is done by hundreds of students. The big activity in the last month of school is the Junior Prom. Many hours are spent by the juniors to locate a site, plan decorations, refreshments and a band.

Precious And Few Are The Moments We Share

There is a lot of money to be earned for the prom from the seventh grade up to the eleventh grade. Many juniors found it nerve-racking trying to get the decorations done, hoping the bands would show up, and doing everything to make this prom the best possible. The theme was "Precious and Few". Music was provided by the A.M. Band. The weekend of the prom turned out to be one for everyone.

After the prom, there was an after prom at Cooper's, where one could dance, listen to the Phoenix band, bowl, or play one of the many games available. The following day everyone took off for more excitement. Some went to King's Island; while others headed for Turkey Run. That following Monday you could see that the juniors and seniors were drained from the weekend, but they can always look back and remember all the great memories of the Prom.

Everyone awaits the crowning of the new prom queen.

Something New This Year

It was a windy and cold October 10, when Lapel had its first afternoon Homecoming game and parade.

The parade was led by the town marshall, followed by the band. Each class had a float, and each class had a member of the queen's court. The seniors had three queen candidates. All of these young ladies and their escorts rode in Corvettes. At 1:30 p.m. the game between Lapel and Mt. Vernon began. The Bulldogs played well but they were not able to overcome the opponents.

At halftime Lisa Simpson, last year's queen, crowned Jeana Pentz the queen for 1980.

That evening the students and the alumni met in the athletic building for a dance. The music was by "Flick". Over three hundred students honored Queen Jeana Pentz and her court.

Paying The Price Of Love

The Lapel music department presented the Broadway musical Music Man in the spring of 1980. The musical comedy with its cast of 80 ranging from age five to eighteen, brought enthusiastic raves from the audiences and three capacity crowds.

Fast talking Prof. Harold Hill (played by Chris Tarvin) spell bound Marion, the librarian (Jeana Pentz) and the entire Iowa-stubborn town of River City kept all listening. The audience laughed with the pompous Mayor (Tim Hunt) and his wife (Megan Lavelle) and marvelled at the town board who changed from bickering businessmen into a respectable quartet (Scott Cecil, Scott Stump, Chris Nunley and Robert Cole). The professor was aided in his con game to build a boy's band by Marcillus Washburn (Paul Cecil). Mrs. Paroo (Mimi McIntire) did her best to promote the love affair between her daughter and the professor by adding her Irish wit and charm. In the end the town of River City had a boy's band (of questionable musical ability) and a much healthier attitude toward life.

The production was staged in the music room. Jeannine Terhune was the director and Greg Scott was the conductor of the pit band with Mrs. Cathy Coomer as the accompanist and Mrs. Gay Scott was an assistant director. Mrs. Brenda Mills and the art department designed and painted the scenery.

Jeana Pentz, the librarian, explains to Chris Tarvin, the professor, the way things have to be.

Having Fun And Making Money Too!

Once a year all of the organizations and classes work together to provide an evening of amusement for everyone. This is the Fall Festival, coordinated by the Student Council.

The main purpose for such an event, is to provide income for the organizations and classes to lessen the costs of the high school years.

There were the reliable money makers such as the Spook House, the cake walk, and football throw; however, the Art Club's booth stole the show. Members of the club decorated T-shirts, and painted faces.

The evening was ended with distribution of door prizes and a total profit of $1,515.66. It was a profitable and fun event.

ATHLETICS

It is difficult to have a team for track, cross-country, golf, baseball, volleyball, wrestling, and basketball.

All of these sports had teams of at least ten members to thirty members. If you look at the various teams you will find familiar faces because students, due to the small enrollment, participated in more than one sport.

Cross-country acted as training for football, volleyball, wrestling, baseball, track, and basketball.

Even though the enrollment is small, you will find that Lapel had an outstanding performer in each of the sports. The goal of the sports activities was to help students achieve for themselves, for the school, and for the community.

The Few, The Proud, The Track Teams

The boys varsity track team had a big problem this year due to the lack of participants. Although it had a winless season, it did gain respectability through the efforts of Quincy Flatford. Quincy was chosen as the most outstanding athlete.

The junior high boys got experience necessary to qualify for varsity by running in meets.

The girls track team reached a season record of two wins and ten losses. The team tried its very best, and they tied for second place in the WRC.

Hopefully 1981 will bring them more victories.

Second To None

Although the cross country team didn't have a perfect record this year, they obviously have improved from last year!

All the guys put a 100% determination into their running this year and it showed. They proved this by coming in second at the White River Conference which isn't bad at all! However at the Sheridan Invitational they lagged a bit by finishing sixth out of nine teams. But they wrapped the season up with a 7-12 record which is a definite good sign.

Rob Kirchenbauer goes fishing for golf balls!

Here Come The Blues

This season proved to be a "hole in one" for the golf team this year. Besides having an outstanding record of 9-4, they also pulled away with three first place titles. These first place titles were earned in the Shenandoah Fall Invitational, the Frankton Invitational, and the White River Conference. To top it off, Doug Banning and Rob Kirchenbauer were honored as All Conference players.

This spring the golf team got off to a new start when a new coach, Joe Shepard, took over. By using his new techniques the team should be able to have another successful year.

Doug Banning swings for a perfect hole in one.

Meet the W.R.C. Baseball Champs

That's right! Our mighty Bulldogs put all their efforts together and won the W.R.C. by defeating Shenandoah 2-1. Starting pitcher Rick Benefiel and Mike Boyll, who pitched relief in the last inning, combined their efforts to pitch a three-hitter that day. Robert Cole also hit a two-run homer.

The rest of the season also brought many rewards. The baseball playing Bulldogs won 19 games and only lost 12 with one tie. Junior Mike Boyll pitched a no hitter against Yorktown. For our Bulldogs summer season, they were Pendleton League Co-Champs and Pendleton Tourney Champs. With all of these accomplishments, we should be proud of our Bulldogs.

Almost But Not Quite

oach Short presents the boys' mistakes in a man-erly way to boost their morale.

After some years of ending up with losing seasons, our football team is steadily beating a path for an upswing. Even if you can't see it on the stats, our guys had a winning season in guts, determination, and spirit. You not only saw it in the football players but in the fans, the student body, and the community. Though one of the hardest disappointments in football is almost, but not quite, winning a game, which happened when we played Shenandoah and lost by one point, our guys never gave up and we never stopped standing behind them.

This year's team saw many other changes as well. We obtained a new assistant coach, Mr. Joe Buck, and the guys received new uniforms. This year was also the first time we have ever had female managers. Laura Willis, Leslie Ramsey, Deanna Hoover, Cathy Zink, and Vickie Henry proved that they could do their job just as well as anyone else. By taking the task upon themselves, the girls showed the team they were supporting the team in their own special way.

Quarterback, Mike Green, watches from the bench as the team executes its defensive plays.

Deciding whether to pass the ball or run it himself, Mike Green only has a few moments to decide.

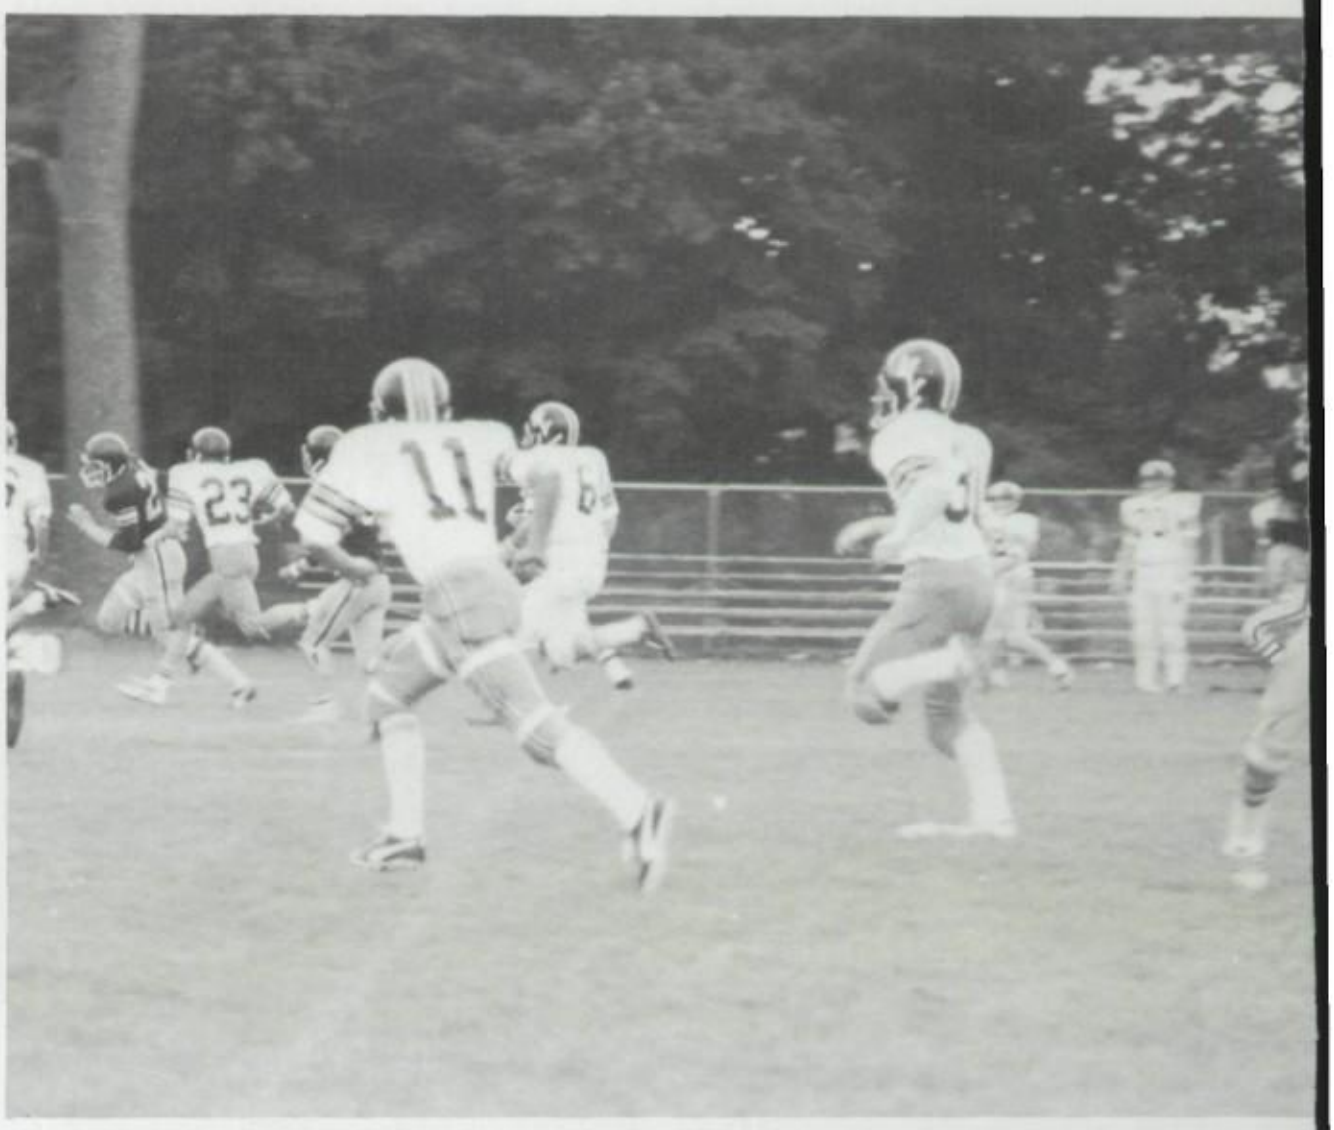
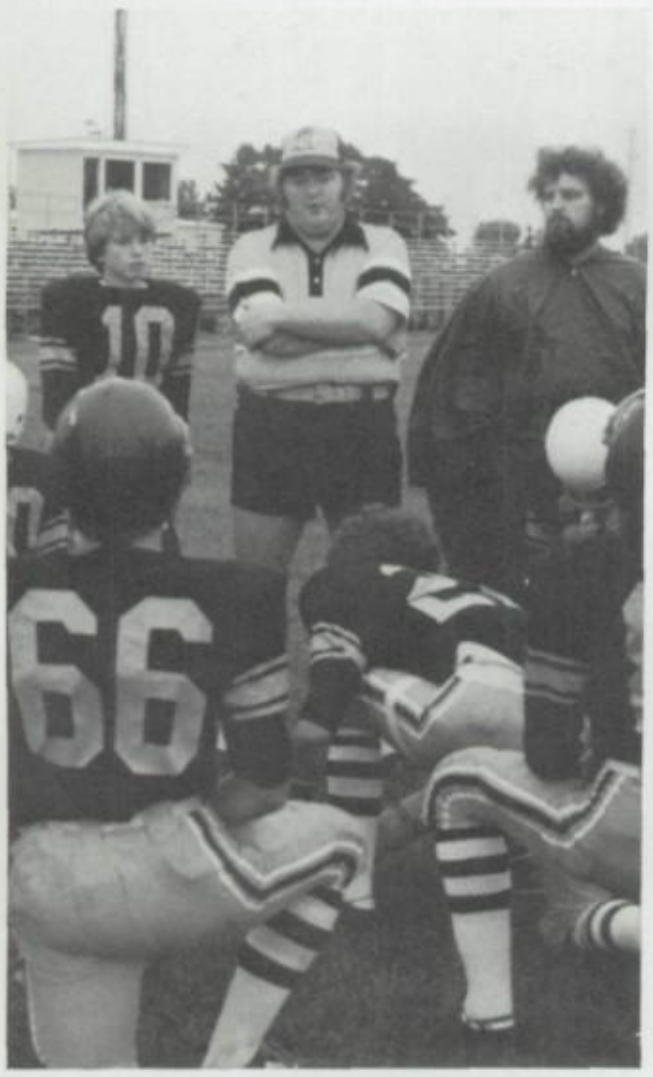
There's No Other Fields With Shepards Like Ours

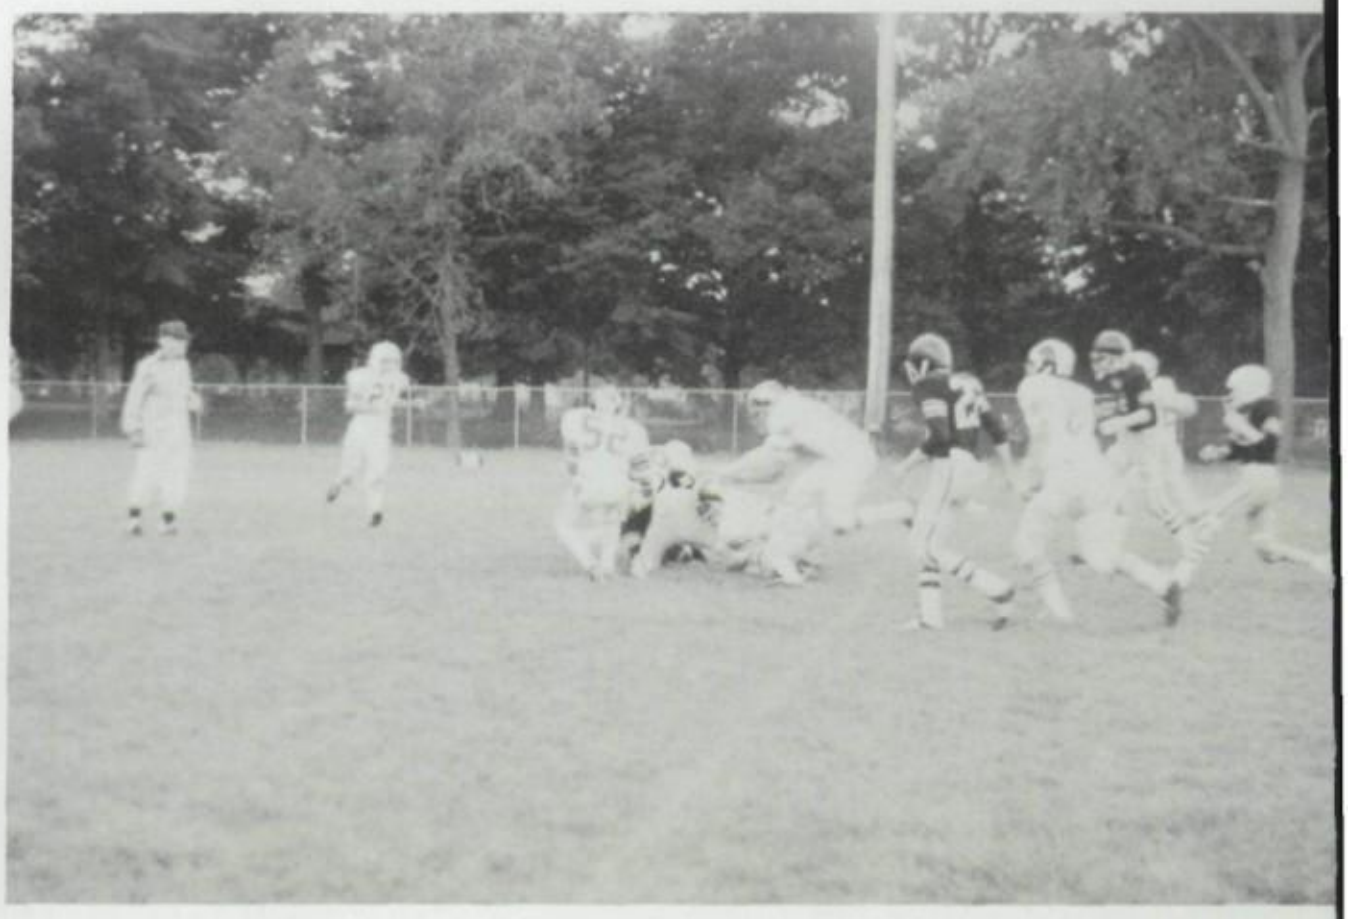
Many young boys began learning and are still learning the techniques of football on the junior high team. By the time these boys make it to high school, they should be able to end up with a winning season and contribute many skills as was shown this year. After working as hard as they could, the seventh and eighth graders finished with a season of 3-3, which was motivated by the coaching of Mr. Joe Shepard.

The reserve team found themselves in an unusual position this year mainly because a majority of them were playing their games during the week and the varsity games on Friday nights. Under the coaching of Mr. Fields, the reserve team accumulated a record of 2-2 with one game at Frankton rained out.

All of our teams have one factor in common though. They don't have the quanity most schools do. The odds are still against us but the dreams of the coaches and the teammates are still there.







Mr. Fields tells the boys what mistakes need to be corrected as they take a break.

The pile up has prevented the Bulldogs from scoring another touchdown.

Hard Work Really Pays Off

The wrestling team worked hard this year to attain their record of 5-8, the best our school has ever had. Everyone gave his all to live up to the team motto of "pain, power, and pride."

Besides their outstanding season record, the team placed fourth in the W.R.C. and third in the Sectional. In the W.R.C., Skeeter Henry was the Conference Champion; Eddie Wright, Randy Shetterly, and Todd Snyder placed second; and Paul Smith and Jay Sigler placed third. In the Sectional, Skeeter Henry and Todd Snyder placed second; Eddie Wright, Paul Smith, Randy Shetterly, and Scott Givens placed third; and Bryan Reed, Jay Sigler, and John Fort placed fourth. This really increased the attention given to this strenuous sport and raised the attendance at their meets. Since most of the wrestlers will be returning, next year promises to be even better.

Experience Was A Factor

Lapel started out with a fresh team this ear with plenty of talent but not much arsity playing experience. There were only ve seniors on the team with the rest being ophomores and juniors. After the boys ot their season under way, things started icking up.

Though the going was rough, they found with determination and drive they could each their goals. They didn't win as many games as they would have liked to have won but they gave experienced opponents tough competition, which is common for Lapel.

Next year's team will have the advantage of many experienced players plus a very experienced leader, Mr. Hunter. Fans should see a dramatic upward serving in the number of games won.

Preparing for 1981 Varsity

John Stinson has to decide very quickly whether to fake a pass or not.

The reserve team had some very exciting games this year. The losses and wins were usually by a few points. The most thrilling one was with the Frankton Eagles, Lapel's arch rival. The lead changed so many times and finally in the last seconds of overtime, the Eagles scored.

Next year these players will move up to varsity and their place will be taken by this year's ninth grade. This means that the reserves will have a championship team, for the ninth grade had an outstanding record and the White River Freshman championship. The win added another trophy to the trophy case.

Records Aren't Everything

The records for the seventh and eighth grade boys' basketball team are not the primary reason for the sport at this time. This is the time when young players learn the basic maneuvers for good basketball playing. Their busy playing schedules then allow them to put their skills into action.

The seventh grade team, coached by Mr. Steve Babbitt, had a record of three wins and twelve losses. The eighth grade team, who had a new coach, Mr. Joe Buck, had a season consisting of eleven wins and five losses.

These boys should be able to make their seasons better next year by using all the techniques learned. The eighth grade will move up to the freshman team or even some of them will play on the reserve team while the seventh graders will move on to another coach and another team for another year's work.

There Were Great Moments

The Bulldogs ended up with a season record of 7-13. It wasn't a winning season but to many it was a good one nevertheless. The main thing that made the year a likable one was the defeat of our rivals—the Highland Scots.

We had some outstanding players to be proud of and most of them will be returning next year. Niece Dennemann, senior, Julie Dennemann, junior, and Jill Sandala, junior, were selected for the White River Conference team. Along with these players was Karen Bodenhorn who received an honorable mention. To make the season complete, Mrs. McDermit was voted coach of the year.

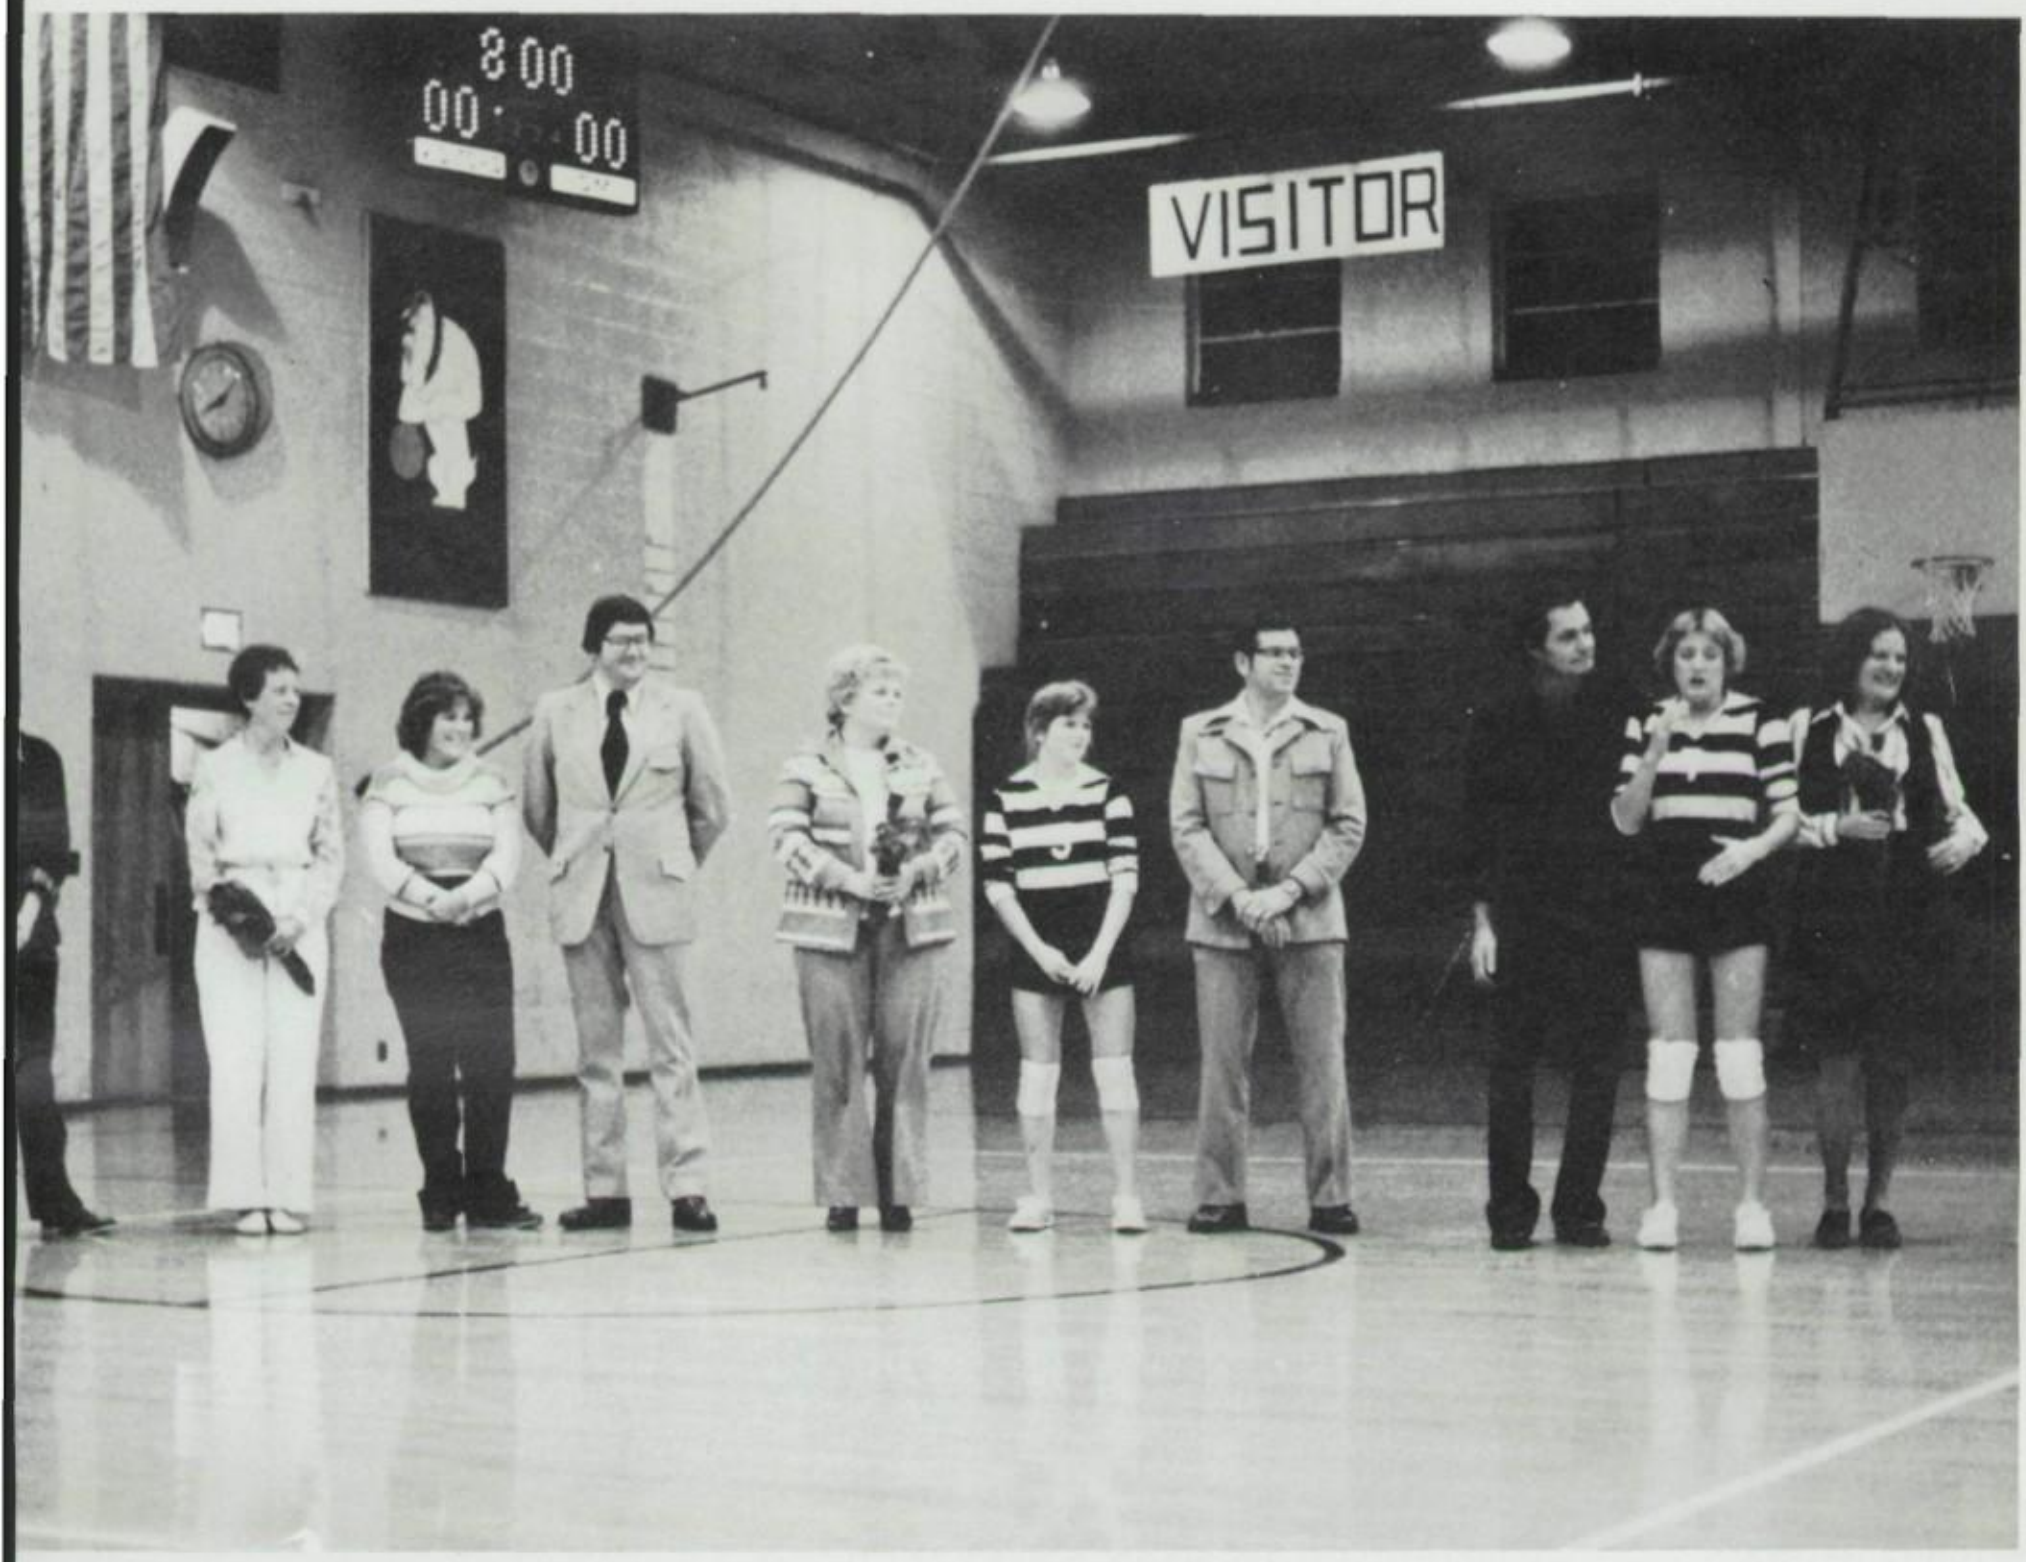
At the Fall Athletic Banquet, Jill Sandala was given the serving award for her outstanding talent in serving. Julie Dennemann was given the Most Valuable Player Award by her teammates. Her leadership was more than needed to pull the team through the rough spots.

Next season should prove to be a good one by all aspects because of only losing two players. Everyone will have to be on their toes to beat the Bulldogs.

Coach McDermit clenches her hands together as the team makes a mistake.

High spirits and a winning attitude fill Niece Dennemann as she rushes out onto the floor.

Angie McIntire awaits the ball to bump it for someone else to spike it.



Senior night made some happy while others cried as the last game would soon be played.

Starting Out Fresh

The reserve team prepared the girls for next year's volleyball action. The reserve obtained a new coach this year when Mrs. Williamson came to our school. She aided Mrs. McDermit, varsity coach, by taking over the reserve team and leading them to a 4-15 season. Teaching the team certain skills, Mrs. Williamson should have a good season next year because she'll feel at home with the team.

Beginners Luck

Everyone knows that the more you practice the better you perform. In the seventh grade, the girls are introduced to volleyball rules and techniques while in the eighth grade the rules have already been presented and the intense practice begins. To prove their knowledge, the seventh grade concluded with a season of 7-3. The eighth grade didn't have a winning season; it was 5-7, and they placed second in the Leach Invitational.

It All Added Up

This year proved to be an outstanding one for the girls varsity basketball team. Much of this success can be accredited to the fact that almost every girl that played last year returned this year. By returning, these girls brought with them new determination and old experience. With these two helpful traits backing the girls, it all added up to a spectacular year.

The main highlight of the year's season was when the girls won the Westfield tourney. The girls managed this by winning their first game against Sheridan and then by beating Westfield in an overtime with a score of 64-53. But the best thing about this team is that they'll be returning once more next year. It looks like a victorious future for 1982.

Getting It All Together

Getting it all together seemed to be the motto of the jr. high and reserve basketball teams. For both teams it proved to be a year of discovering hidden talents and learning new techniques.

For the jr. high it was a year of learning the basics and applying them. By learning these skills they were able to participate against local area schools with some success.

As for the reserve team it was a year of learning new offensive and new defensive techniques which they displayed in their games. Although it wasn't a very successful year for the reserve team when they ended the season with a 1-15 record, the girls will return next year with the sure confidence that they will win because they have acquired experience.

The Foundations Are Laid Here

The main function of this faculty is to lay the foundations upon which the high school faculty will build. In each class there is a certain responsibility of the teacher to build upon what has already been achieved. As the children "climb the ladder" through the grades, the curriculum increases and the extra-curricular activities are added. The activities are only available because of certain faculty members taking the time out to work with these young "pups" for future scholastic and athletic goals.

Just Ordinary People

Although to many students they seem to be gods and goddesses, underneath they're just ordinary people. Many of the teachers are involved in activities outside of school. While some go home to pick up the roles of mother, father, husband, and wife; others are playing the roles of coach and sponsor. This can be proven by walking through the halls and seeing the trophy case. These trophies were won by Mr. Field's 5th and 6th grade basketball teams. And to help them win there were the cheerleaders who kept their morale going. But without the help of their sponsor, Mrs. Anderson, it wouldn't have happened because she's no ordinary person!

Striving To Become Responsible

Mr. Fields, while looking the other way, doesn't see Mark Springer turned around in his seat talking to some fellow classmates.

There are many advantages to having seniority in a lot of different places including grade school. Being the biggest isn't always the most pleasant though; you have to assume more responsibility. The next year won't be filled with recesses and afternoon milk breaks.

To strengthen the students' ability to do creative writing, the class worked on and published a newspaper telling about the history of our American flag and what it should mean.

Some of the sixth grade boys prepared for a tough basketball season consisting of nine games and a tourney with the three West Central Cummunity School's elementary grades. It's exciting to the cheerleaders, fans, and players to have this chance to build a background of sports.

Grade school may seem dull to some, but to all of these kids it's a big time in their lives.

Learning Through Committees

Foundations are laid in the elementary grades, but also, along with the basic subjects came special work. Since this was an election year, a unit was done on elections with a real voting machine portraying Reagan as the winner.

To gain experience in working on committees as we do in social life, the students were divided into groups of six, and each group produced a magazine. Titles for these magazines were: "Popcorn", "Fun and Games", "Flame", "Peanuts", and "The News". These students have quickly learned the way we function.

Working Together Equals Success

The basics were supplemented with more comprehensive science and social studies. The election year provided an opportunity to study our election systems.

As a group they participated in "The Nutcracker" which was performed at Christmas time. Then they spent part of the year learning about Hoosier Heritage in Indiana. As an end to this study, the class went to Connor Prairie which is the most authentic pioneer settlement in the state. This provoked the fourth grade to create extra-curricular activities that are for the next year.

Experience Was A Good Teacher

The class anticipated their trip to Indianapolis.

How large are the numbers with which the third graders work? Well, to make certain that they would be in the thousands, the class collected and counted and kept a record of bottle caps. The number achieved through this project was over two thousand five hundred ninety-nine (2,599). This was a math project.

The City Market in Indianapolis was another exciting project. City Market covers a square and houses all kinds of businesses, gift and hobby shops, and restaurants. They then went to the city building and found out how the market helps everyone in the Indianapolis area.

For a science project, they journeyed to Ball State University to the planetarium to view space and science exhibits. These projects proved that experience was a good teacher.

Election Was The Year's Highlight

This was a very exciting year for the second graders. Since this was an election year, they held a mock election in which Shane Kemerly was elected president, Amy Millikan was elected vice-president, and Chris Woodward was elected senator. By doing this, all of the students learned more about our system of government. They also used a learning center for individual self-help. Among the outside activities, the students went to the Indianapolis Children's Museum and to the Muncie Children's Museum. At both of these places they learned about Indiana's heritage.

Mrs. Horton's first graders wait patiently for story-time—one of their favorite times of the day.

First Full Day of Activities

This is the first time for a child's whole day away from home. The day is so full of activities that it really passes rapidly. Reading, writing, and arithmetic are the basics taught and social studies and sciences are introduced. The children learn to make friends, to accept the responsibilities of getting work done, to bring lunch money and to get on the right bus.

Along with the basic work the first graders made Pinatas for Christmas; had a visit from Santa; went on field trips to the Indianapolis Zoo, the Ball State University planetarium and the Lapel Public Library. One day was story character dress up day.

That's Excitement!

Exciting! That's how you would describe this year for the kindergarteners. Besides keeping busy learning their letters and sounds to prepare them to start reading, they had many outside activities. Their field trips included going to Stoney Creek Farms and the Pumpkin Patch in October. At the Pumpkin Patch they each got to pick out their own pumpkin to take home. They participated in a Halloween costume parade and a Thanksgiving feast with Pilgrim hats. In the spring they plan to walk to the library and the fire station. They are also planning to take a field trip to Mounds Park in May.

Prospects For The Future

"Start them young" and "Practice makes perfect" are old adages that are put to use at Lapel. It is in the fifth and sixth grades that boys first come out to learn how to be basketball players. These boys, being the youngest sports group, must make an unusual schedule for practice sessions. They usually practice early on Saturday mornings or anytime when no other team is using the school gym. As you can see by their winning records, this didn't dampen the spirits of these young boys who dream of being future Bulldog stars. Under the guidance of their coach, Mr. Woody Fields, both teams have earned many trophies which are displayed in the elementary hall. The cheerleaders and pep club, sponsored by Mrs. Margaret Anderson, go with the teams to all their games to truly give the boys moral support.

Working Day And Night

Safety, cleanliness, and good food—these are the goals of the bus drivers, the custodians, and the cooks.

Ten buses arrive at 7:50 a.m. with rural students. Through all kinds of weather, these drivers safely make their rounds.

From 6:00 a.m. right around the clock, there are workers here to make sure that the rooms are clean and that everything is in working order.

The ladies of the cafeteria crew are kept busy getting meals ready for all of the students. There is a split lunch hour which keeps the lines from being crowded. There is the regular line, and there is the a'la carte' line which enables the students to choose what they want to eat.

The Door Is Open To Our Ads

Preparing the annual requires people to be followed through activities, organizations, studies, and sports. These are all easy to find in any school system. The most difficult part of preparing an annual is the providing of the necessary funds. Seven hundred copies are sold each year at the reasonable price of not more than eight dollars and fifty cents. If you check the math, you will find that this does not earn the nine thousand dollars necessary. The remainder of the necessary funds is provided by the businesses and boosters.

Now That We've Gone Through The Open Doors

Well the tour of Lapel is over. We have seen Lapel as a whole and then broken up into its respective parts. On the first stop at the beginning of our tour, we looked at our people.

At this stop we saw the people who make up the high school: the administration, the faculty, the students, the janitors, the cooks, and the bus drivers. We saw how the administrators and faculty, not only kept the school running and taught, but also guided the students through their everyday lives. We showed the students played a major part in the livelihood of the school with their many achievements—both scholastic and extra-curricular. By their hard work, the janitors, cooks, and bus drivers provided everyone with a clean atmosphere, good healthful meals, and safe transportation.

Our next stop was in the academics department. This showed the various courses of study available to the students at Lapel. We realized that the great importance of this department cannot be overlooked, since it is the basic part of our education.

At our third stop, organizations, we saw for the first time how closely the school and the community interact. The organizations depend on the community and the community depends on the organizations for much of their entertainment.

Activities was the next thing that caught our eye. These activities added some excitement to everyday school and community life.

Next, we ran into athletics. We saw the tremendous output of energy and dedication from the athletes, coaches, and backers. Together these people strove for th one common goal—victory.

After athletics we went to the elementa section. There is an important connectio that we all have with the elementary; all us learned our basics there.

The last look was at the advertisement which were supplied by businesses. O dependence upon each other is crucial f we could never have raised enough mon to do this book without them and, th depend on the patronage our annual brin them.

In a few words, we have summed u the tour of 1980-81. Though it may hav seemed like an ordinary year to som others have known it to be unique, and w hope you did, too.

A Note From The Editors

As the editors, we would like to thank all the people who helped. Without these individuals, the book wouldn't have been finished. Trying to put a hundred and eighty-four pages together with five steady workers and an advisor wasn't easy, but we did it.

Tracy Howell and Maura Pearce deserve much credit for putting together a large number of pages. This cut down on the work for us and we'd like to thank them for giving of their time so freely.

The pages wouldn't have much typing on them if it hadn't been for Mila Crooks, our main typist. She did other errands as well and we appreciated it very much.

Mimi McIntire, Kelli Scott, and Louann Hazalbaker took care of the money and made sure we didn't go under. This took a great deal of responsibility because over five thousand dollars was more than pocket change. Also, Mimi and Kelli typed when they found time.

Shelly Busby and Rob Mountcastle took care of the picture shooting and did a great job. The photographs have a big part in determining the quality of the book. They had help from Mr. Jay Stillwagon of Prestige Portraits, who developed our film, Mr. Glaze from Herff Jones gave us excellent advice.

We would also like to thank the ad sellers and ad buyers because you can print a book without money behind it.

Last, but not least, we'd like to thank Miss Rockey for giving up her evenings t help us work on this book. When problem arose, she always managed to find a wa to fix them. She also helped us celebra and made the trip to pick up the book possible.

A special thank you to each and every one for the time dedicated. We're just gla that the job is done for all to see.

The Editors:
Laura Willis
Leslie Ramsey

- Miss Rockey -

I'm so glad I worked on the annual this year. If I hadn't, I wouldn't have gotten to know you as well as I do. You're really a great person, and I'm going to miss you next year. Thank you for everything.

Love, your friend,
Tracy Howell

- Miss Rockey -

Thanks for all the help you have given me. It has been a real pleasure to have been a pupil of yours. I hope that you continue your great work for as long as you wish.

To dear Miss Rockey,

Well, I can never ever thank-you enough for all that you have done for me. But I'll try! From the bottom of my heart comes the most thanks I have. I've had a wonderful year and a lot of it has been your doing. You've helped me make so many friends and your friendship above has helped me immensly. You have done so many wonderful things for me Miss Rockey that I wish you all the happiness in the world. I hope you continue to teach and help all the other exchange students in future years. You'll never know how much I appreciate you and how much I love you. You've always been there for me to talk to and you've been more than generous and kind! I'm really going to miss you next year when I'm at home because your are special person I'll never ever forget. Thanks again so very much - next time your in Australia - come see me.

yours very sincerely

Jenny Shaw.
